

TWENTY-FIVE KILLED WHEN BOILER BURSTS

LOCOMOTIVE BOILER EXPLODES IN SOUTHERN PACIFIC YARDS AT SAN ANTONIO.

STRIKERS NOT BLAMED

Falling Walls of Roundhouse and Shops Eury Many—Y. M. C. A. Rescue Band Digs Out Bodies.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

San Antonio, Texas, March 18.—Twenty-five men are known to have been killed, many more injured and several buildings were wrecked today when the boiler of a locomotive exploded in the local yards of the Southern Pacific railway.

Eighteen bodies had been recovered from the wreckage within two hours after the explosion and more are being removed while nearby stores and buildings were filled with the injured.

The roundhouse and the cooper shops were practically demolished and many men working in them were hurt by falling walls.

The army hospital corps here was rushed to the yards and police ambulances and Y. M. C. A. workers were organized to rescue bands to dig out the dead and try to save the lives of the wounded.

So mangled were some of the victims that there seemed no hope of piecing the fragments of their bodies together sufficiently to identify them.

The victims were said to be largely men who had been employed as strike breakers.

Strike breakers have been working at the shops of the Southern Pacific ever since the shopmen's strike began several months ago.

After the explosion rumors in the town sections of San Antonio were that dynamite was the cause, but investigation at the yards showed no indications that such rumors had started there. San Antonio practically has been free from violence during the strike.

The locomotive was standing in the yards near the shop and the explosion came without warning. Parts of the roundhouse collapsed and several small buildings in the shop enclosure were wrecked, including parts of the machine shop. Engines in the roundhouse were smashed as it hit with huge mallets.

The roundhouse caught fire, the half ton jacket of the exploding locomotive boiler dropped between houses on Duval street, several blocks distant, while the tender was hurled several hundred feet and twisted into a big, shapeless chunk of steel. A majority of the men who were killed were from the northern and western states.

ARIZONA WILL HAVE MANY NEW STATUTES

First Legislature Convened at Noon Today—Election of Senators First Business to Come Up.

Phoenix, Ariz., March 18.—Arizona's first state legislature convened at noon today and proceeded to the work of organization. The election of two United States senators will be the first important matter taken up after the body gets into working. The election of the senators will not occupy much time as the advisory primary already has named Henry P. Ashurst of Prescott and Marcus A. Smith of Tucson to wear the togs. Both are Democrats.

A thoroughly legislative program awaits the lawmakers. It is expected the legislature will undertake the redemption of the pre-election pledge to submit to the voters the inclusion of the judiciary in the operation of the recall. It also is expected to submit the question of whether the present state officers remain in office until January 1, 1913, or two years later, the constitution being obscure on that point.

Among the most important mandates of the constitution are the enactment of an employers' liability law and a workmen's compulsory compensation act. A strong endeavor will be made to secure the submission of an equal suffrage amendment to the constitution. A statewide prohibition amendment also will be pushed.

INTRODUCES BILL FOR PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARIES TODAY

Senator Cummins Brings Up Measure in the Senate—Other Washington News.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, March 18.—Senator Cummins of Iowa introduced in the senate a presidential primary bill, the effect of which would be to do away with local, state and national conventions of the various political parties.

The plan of Senator Cummins is to have a national primary July 8, next, to be followed each four years with a national primary election up on the second Monday of July. The results of such a primary election would be canvassed by a "national board for primary elections" and the candidates of each political party, receiving the greatest number of votes would be certified by that board as the candidates to be voted for in the elections of candidates for president, vice-president and presidential electors.

BIGGEST WARSHIPS PLANNED FOR NAVY

Plans Already Being Drawn for Sea Monsters Which Will Be Most Powerful in Any Navy.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, March 18.—The thirty thousand ton sea monster which has been the dream of the American navy ever since the British ship builders initiated the struggle for supremacy in the battleships of the world, already is being planned on paper in the navy department in anticipation of the building of two new battleships. The plan calls for a ship about as large as the New York, with a good speed cruiser like the Olympia, Admiral Dewey's flagship in the battle of Manila, added to her bulk. If Congress permits them to be built, the new ships will present several unusual features. Possibly they will have fifteen-inch guns, eight for each ship, which will be by far the most powerful battleships afloat in any navy.

DETECTIVES SEARCH FOR JUDGE'S ENEMY

Looking for Sender of Infernal Machine to New York Judge.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, March 18.—Every available detective at police headquarters is searching the city today for the man who attempted to slay Judge Otis A. Holmby on Saturday night with an infernal machine sent him through the mails. Similarly of the type of the manufacture of the deadly missile with which caused the death of, on February 3, last, Helen Taylor, at her home on Seventy-seventh street, has led to the opinion that the same man sent both bombs.

TAFT FOR PRIMARIES IN COMING CAMPAIGN

Declares in Favor of Them at Speech in Boston Today—Demands Certain Safeguards.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Boston, Mass., March 18.—A declaration in favor of preferential primaries for the presidency under certain conditions in the coming campaign was made by President Taft today in the chief of a series of speeches delivered in Boston.

The president made known his attitude of the preferential primaries question in an address before the legislature, "Wherever full and fair notice of the election can be given to all, wherever adequate election safeguards can be thrown around to protect a preferential primary for the presidency, wherever the constitution of the U. S. permits it being made applicable to present election, I favor it and welcome it."

The president arrived in Boston this morning at 7:00. Over his coffee and rolls at the City Club he made his first address of the day, carefully avoiding public questions.

At the City Club he was joined by his son Robert a student at the Harvard law school. Later the president was driven to the Hotel Somerset where he was the city's guest at a formal breakfast.

A little later in the same hotel the president addressed the Massachusetts Police society while at the Somerset the president received a call from Cardinal O'Donnell.

At the conclusion of his state house speech the president took luncheon with the Pilgrim Pilgrimage Association.

Tomorrow the president will make a brief tour of southern New Hampshire, spending at Nashua, Manchester, and Concord.

Taft to Visit New Hampshire.

Concord, N. H., March 18.—In response to an urgent call from his friends in New Hampshire President Taft has agreed to visit the Granite State tomorrow and will deliver public speeches in Nashua, Manchester and Concord. His visit is designed to check the spread of the insurgent movement. Next to Massachusetts, no state in this section of the country has attracted so much attention in the anti-Taft campaign as New Hampshire, because of the prominence of Governor Bass and his activity in behalf of Roosevelt.

The Roosevelt men may be said to have the inside track thus far, because they already have an active organization within the Republican ranks. Following the meeting at which Governor Bass called together some forty leading progressives of the state, and at which a tacit endorsement of Roosevelt was made, there was a conference which called upon the Republican State Committee to hold a presidential primary.

Governor Bass and his friends in the Roosevelt camp will be given a hard fight by Senator Chandler and his old guard. General Frank S. Streeter, who was appointed by President Taft on the Boundary Commission, is the active leader in the Taft campaign and he has with him a large number of the so-called "old-line" Republicans, who will stand by the President to the end. They believe that the President's visit tomorrow is certain to result in a solid Taft delegation from New Hampshire to the National convention.

Cryan Banquet to Be Big Affair.

Lincoln, Neb., March 18.—Democratic leaders who share the opinion of William Bryan that only a "progressive" should be named to head the national ticket this year are gathering in Lincoln today to talk over the situation. The ostensible purpose of the round-up of the leaders at this time and place is to attend the banquet to be given here tomorrow night in celebration of Mr. Bryan's fifty-second birthday. The banquet has been an annual affair for some years past, but this year it is to take on more of a national aspect than ever before. Plans looking to that end have been going on quietly for some time and it is expected that several scores of the leading progressive Democrats of the nation will be in attendance. The toast list of the banquet will contain only speakers from outside Nebraska. Among them will be Senator Gore of Oklahoma, George Pratt Williams of Massachusetts and Frederick Townsend Martin of New York.

MARINES LANDED TO PROTECT INTERESTS

Detachment From United States Monitor Takes Charge of Customs House at Swatow.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Swatow, China, March 18.—A detachment of marines from the United States monitor Monterey, landed here today in consequence of the continuous disturbances all over the city and the threatening attitude of some of the natives.

Heavy fighting between Hakkai tribesmen and the troops from Canton went on for eight hours today in the streets of the city. Five natives are known to have been killed during the fighting and it is believed that the casualties far exceed that number.

A shot from one of the tribesmen who were firing wildly killed a blue jacket on a Japanese warship in the harbor and several other bullets struck the United States monitor Monterey. The reports from Swatow say that the troops are mutinous.

TWO CONVICTS ARE REPORTED CAPTURED AFTER LONG FLIGHT

Stole Ammunition, Clothes and Provisions at Prairie Home and Continue Flight.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Lincoln, Neb., March 18.—The escaped convicts and murderers just before daylight were seen just out of South Bend, Nebraska, on a hand car. They had stolen the car at Prairie Home just out of Lincoln and breaking into a hardware store at Mordock had stolen guns, ammunition and clothing. Capture Expected.

Louisville, Neb., March 18.—The three convicts who had been reported to have been captured at Mordock, Neb., are being pursued by possees from Omaha, Lincoln and Plattsmouth. Their death or capture momentarily is expected.

The outlaws are being driven toward Springfield in a sleigh by Roy Blunt, a farmer who resides three miles north of town. The convicts are lying down in the body of the vehicle, forcing the farmer to expose himself to the bullets of the posse as soon as they get within firing distance.

Hand Car Ditched.

Omaha, Neb., March 18.—Latest reports saw that the convicts ditched the stolen hand car at Mendon, Neb., threw the car into the Missouri river and are traveling north toward this city on foot. Mendon is in the southwest part of Sarpy county, about 15 miles southwest of this city. The bandits were two and a half miles north of Mendon shortly after 10:00 o'clock and were headed toward Gretna. A posse has been organized at Springfield and is in pursuit.

Men Shot.

A report reached here at 2:30 that Taylor was killed, having committed suicide and Mordock surrendered. The fight occurred between Gretna and Omaha. Another report has it that Roy Blunt, the farmer who was driving their conveyance also was killed. Is Confirmed.

Lincoln, Neb., March 18.—Local advice received confirmed from three different sources declare that possees have killed Taylor and Dowd and have captured Mordock. The fight took place north of Gretna.

CREATES SENSATION WITH A NEW VERSION

Editor of Norwegian Paper Publishes Roosevelt's Views on Foreigners in America.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 18.—Prof. Magnus B. Anderson, editor of the Norwegian national weekly, "Amerik," published here, created a sensation among his readers today by reprinting from "Waecher," a Berlin German weekly, extracts from an article called "Americanism," in which the ex-president is quoted as expatiating those foreigners who refuse to abandon the habits and ideals of the fatherland after settling in America. The column is credited with saying that only English should be taught in American public schools. He has no use, the article says, for those foreign voters who still cling to their Old World customs, habits and ideals.

Prof. Anderson is an eminent Norwegian author, his books and translations numbering over sixty volumes. He was United States minister to Denmark under President Cleveland, and served for nearly five years at the court of Copenhagen. He believes that Mr. Roosevelt's article in the Berlin magazine is a more serious assault on the rights of foreigners than was the Bennett law in Wisconsin, in the overthrow of which he (Anderson) to be European and become an American like the rest of us. More than one-third of the population of the United States consists of immigrants or their sons and daughters. A considerable part of these have become entirely Americanized, and there is no difference between them and the descendants of the Puritans, the Quakers and the Dutch, and they contribute their full share to the national development. But the immigrants or their children who do not cheerfully and from genuine conviction cast their lot with us, but continue to use the language of the Old World and cling to the customs, habits and ideas brought from over the sea, do injury both to us and to themselves.

In a vigorous column of comment upon Roosevelt's views, Prof. Anderson says:

"In he (Roosevelt) actually so naïve that he believes a person can make himself between sunrise and sundown. Does he really believe that a person who but a few weeks or a few months ago with a bleeding heart was torn from his native soil, now in the course of a night can strike roots in his new home? And does not the non-hunter Roosevelt know that even to this day, after the lapse of centuries, the descendants of the Pilgrim fathers and of the Quakerbockers are more or less intellectually dependent on those parts of the Old World who they still constantly refer to as our 'mother country'? Does he not know, or does he not care to know, that we are in a great measure indebted to these very German-Americans and Irish-Americans who are so despised by him, for many of our most important political victories? It is not true that immigrants are clannish. They have repeatedly demonstrated that they place patriotism above the candidacy of a countryman. One who has been so long in public political life as Roosevelt ought to know this."

TEN TURKS KILLED BY ITALIAN WAR PLANES

Italian Aeroplane Drops Bombs on Turkish Forces, Killing Ten. —Valuable Observations From Plane.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Benghazi, Tripoli, March 18.—Bombs dropped from an aeroplane belonging to the Italian expeditionary force killed ten Arabs in a camp some distance from this city today. The aeroplane, driven by an army airman and carrying an officer as a passenger, left the Italian camp early in the morning and flew at a considerable altitude into the desert where a strong Turkish and Arabian encampment was found in a well sheltered position. Before the aeroplane was noticed by the enemy the Italian officer had made valuable observations. Then some of the Arabs opened fire, to which the aeroplanist replied by dropping several bombs with deadly accuracy, which exploded in the midst of a group of Arabs.

Then the aeroplane and several others were wounded. The aeroplane then returned to the Italian camp.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

"The call may be issued right away," he said. "The date has not yet been fixed but it probably will be about April 23. The subjects to be included in the call probably are: first, state aid for the city of Black River Falls; second, state aid to strengthen the Portage levee against floods; third, new water power legislation; fourth, amendments to the weights and measures law, to insure uniform standards for berry crates, etc. Several other minor matters will probably come up."

BATTLESHIP FLORIDA WILL UNDERGO TEST

Steaming Trials of Super-Dreadnought to Engross Attention of Naval Men This Week—A Turbine Ship.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—The steaming trials of the super-dreadnought Florida are expected to engross the undivided attention of naval men this week. The interest in the trials is due partly to the fact that the Florida is to be one of the largest and most formidable fighting machines afloat, but more especially because she is the first battleship to be built in a government yard in many years. A close comparison naturally will be made between her performances and those of her sister ship, the Utah, which has just been turned out at a private yard.

The Florida and the Utah are the latest and mightiest fighting units in the United States Navy and one of the other will supersede the Connecticut as the flagship of the North Atlantic fleet. If she comes up to the expectations of her constructors, as is to be expected by the naval engineers, she will represent an expenditure of nearly $10,000,000. As compared with the largest ships in the United States Navy—the Delaware and the Utah are ten feet longer, 1825 tons greater displacement, on even terms as to the main battery, but with two more of the 5-inch guns in the secondary battery. When completely manned the Florida will carry 340 men and 60 officers, and will have a larger steaming radius than any vessel now in commission.

IRELAND SEEKS TO CHECK FLOOD OF IMMIGRATION

Send Letter to President Taft Asking That United States Rigidly Enforce Immigration Laws.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, March 18.—In a letter addressed to President Taft, the National Council at Dublin has appealed for rigid enforcement of the immigration laws as a means of preventing further depopulation of Ireland by immigration. The country has lost nearly half its population during the past thirty-five years by "unnecessary and abnormal" immigration and that the obliteration of the Irish nation actually is threatened. It is asserted that the British government views this prospect with complacency and satisfaction. Irish immigration, the letter says, is directed largely to the United States.

PROLONGED STRIKE THOUGHT UNLIKELY BY COAL OPERATORS

Suspension of Work Will be Followed by Renewed Negotiations.—Many British Miners Will Resume Work.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, March 18.—The belief that a suspension of work in the anthracite coal mines on April 1st because of the deadlock between the operators and the miners over working conditions, will not be continued long and that a settlement will be reached, was expressed by coal operators here today.

It was pointed out that a similar condition existed when the working agreement expired before when a refusal of the miners' demands was followed by suspension of work, but later negotiations were opened and the old agreement renewed.

President Loomis of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railway company said nothing had taken place, that would prevent further conferences on any new proposition made by the miners.

800 Men Strike.

Shamokin, Pa., March 18.—Eight hundred employees of the Scott collar near here were rendered idle today by all the miners going on strike because the Atlantic Railway and Mining company refused to sell coal to the employees. The company states that outside outstanding orders from places outside the coal regions had to be filled. It is feared that other employees at other colliers may strike for the same reason. The Mineral Railway and Mining company is a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania Railroad company.

In England.

London, March 18.—Many of the British miners now on strike will resume work in the pits in the course of this week, according to the opinion expressed in some quarters where it is believed that by Monday operations will be in full swing in collieries in many parts of the country. The miners' leaders, however, maintained that there will be no resumption of work until the minimum wage bill for underground work has passed through parliament.

ADD PROLONGED STRIKE

Minimum Wage Bill.

Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons today that the government would introduce a minimum wage bill for miners tomorrow. He will ask the House to read it a second time on Wednesday and complete the remaining stages on Thursday.

An increase in the prices of necessities consequent on the virtual stoppage of freight shipments, has caused much distress to the workers' families. The action of the government in introducing minimum wage legislation is criticized in some quarters and is likely to lead to a considerable amount of opposition.

ATTEMPTED HANGING BUT DIED IN CHAIR

Italian Convicted of Murder Tried to Forestall Law But Paid His Penalty in Electric Chair.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Auburn, N. Y., March 18.—Domestic Disputes died in the electric chair today exactly one year after his conviction. To the last he fought against death in the chair and in a statement issued by Deputy Warden Tupper after the execution today he made an effort to hang himself in his cell early Friday morning. He was discovered, cut down and revived and closely guarded until this morning.

When the final summons came, he at first refused to leave the condemned row but was shoved by guards into the death chamber and walked to the chair alone. He would have spoken but the phlegm of the death mask compelled silence.

Two contacts were necessary to carry out the mandate of the law.

Salvatore Disputa, brother of the murderer, whose vain attempts to save Domestico by perjured testimony brought him to Auburn prison was in his cell near by and knelt in prayer during the early morning hours. Disputa's body was claimed by his wife.

Domestico Disputa killed Colonnor Polizzi with a pistol shot during a quarrel during a wedding in Rochester November 13, 1910.

ALLEN STRONGHOLD MAY BE DYNAMITED

Continue in Efforts to Capture Mountaineers Who Killed Five People Including Court Officials.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Hillville, Va., March 18.—Dynamite was suggested today as an effective aid in the hunt for the Allen clan in the belief that the Allens can make of Devil's Den their retreat, an almost impenetrable stronghold.

A search for the Allens when the commonwealth of Virginia is determined to do all it can to bring to justice the murderer here of five of its citizens including the officers of Carroll County circuit court, began in earnest today. Picked men remained on the mountain side all night guarding the approaches to Devil's Den and early today the detachment was joined by the posse of seventy-five detectives and citizen volunteers.

While the detectives are preparing to starve out the fugitives if possible by cutting off their food supply from surrounding districts, Hillville itself is not receiving any too much. One hundred farmers fearing that the town is still in disorder are slow about bringing their wares to market.

FAITH AND LOYALTY OF THE IRISH RACE

PRaised in eloquent address BY THE REV. FATHER REV. NOLDS LAST EVENING.

HONOR TO ST. PATRICK

Large Audience at Opera House For Entertainment Given By Hibernians In Honor of Patron Saint.

Every seat in the Myers opera house was taken last night for the entertainment given by the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the same order in honor of Ireland's patron saint, St. Patrick.

Dr. William McGeehan presided as chairman and introduced the speakers and other members with appropriate remarks. The Rev. Father Nolds, gave a short address of welcome in the absence of Dean Reddy and reflected the festiveness of the occasion in a few phrases.

The Rev. Father Reynolds of Chicago, gave the address of the evening. He gave an eloquent account of the early history of the Irish people and indicated how they had been among the first of the nations of Europe to adopt the Christian religion.

"Just even before the advent of Christianity, which was brought by the patron saint, who was honored throughout the world yesterday, the Irish race had become one of the greatest in Europe. Their prowess in war was only excelled by their civilization in peace and their genuine patriotism and love for their right had truly prepared them for the immediate acceptance of the Christian faith."

"The beauty of the Irish loyalty to the church of Rome was described in a delightful manner by the orator, who with out from their native land and preached the Gospel from one end of Europe to the other. Monasteries 'headed by the Irish monks, universities led by the Irish instructors and teachers, sprang up on all sides and the glory of Irish learning spread with astonishing rapidity."

"But the days of persecution followed. The English soldiers devastated the fair land and laid waste the churches and cathedrals. The altars were red with the blood of her priests and her people were driven to the mountain caves to worship with the same fervor and earnestness under the vaulted dome of heaven."

"Through centuries of persecution and equities the Irish race remained loyal to their faith and were recognized by the Holy See at Rome as the personification of steadfastness to their religion at a time when all Christianity was torn by heresy."

Father Reynolds declared that the Irish people today wherever they may be, had a history and record upon which they might justly look with pride. They had stood for liberty, he said, and he foresaw the time when their island home would again be free. He urged the young Irishmen in this land of liberty not to forget the sacred history of their native country and to remember at all times to be true to the example of their forefathers.

The Rev. J. J. McGeehan of Milton Junction was unable to be present last evening. The musical part of the program met with enthusiastic applause and the old Irish songs and melodies, so dear to the hearts of the Hibernians, were heard with deep appreciation and reverence.

AN OPPORTUNITY TO SELECT PRODUCTION

The Selection of the Play To Be Given Here by Sothern and Marlowe Has Been Left to the Theatregoers.

Frank J. Wilsbach, manager of Sothern and Marlowe, was in the city today for the purpose of selecting one of the plays of their repertoire for presentation here at Myers Theatre, on Wednesday evening, April 17th. There are seven plays in the Sothern and Marlowe repertoire: "Taming of the Shrew," "Measure for Measure," "The Merchant of Venice," "Twelfth Night," "Hamlet," "As You Like It," and "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Wilsbach found that Hamlet and Taming of the Shrew were the two plays most in request for a week ago. He therefore decided to leave the matter open for a week so that the theatregoers generally might give expression to their desires. All those having a preference should write at once to F. J. Wilsbach, manager of Myers Theatre. On next Saturday, the play having the greatest number of requests will be the one selected. Those desiring to see a comedy, will, of course, like to see "Taming of the Shrew," while others preferring something more solid, will want Hamlet. These two plays are the most popular of the Sothern and Marlowe repertoire.

The Sothern and Marlowe company is unquestionably the greatest dramatic organization of the English speaking stage. Even when alone speaking stage, they have enjoyed tremendous success. They joined forces six years ago with the purpose of presenting the plays of Shakespeare in a more complete and finished manner than any other company. The enormous success which they have enjoyed is ample proof that their purpose was a noble one, and that the design has been carried out with loving care. It is generally supposed that Shakespeare spells ruin in the theatre. This is only true when the plays are presented in a slovenly manner and by actors incapable of their proper rendition.

To transport the Sothern and Marlowe company from city to city requires a special train of eleven cars, seven of which are for the company, three for the private cars of the manager and the private car of the equipment for the seven plays of their repertoire is carefully looked after by a very large staff and is kept up to top-notch condition. It is a matter of interest that the properties for the seven productions alone require five men to look after them and that they will fill twenty big wardrobe trunks and over one hundred crates. The wardrobe department has to take care of ninety large trunks. In the way of scenery, there are over one hundred drops and nearly five hundred flat pieces. An equipment of this sort requires a staff of workers numerically larger than the average travelling company of fifteen or twenty people.

The theatregoers of Janesville may set their minds at rest in regards to Miss Marlowe's appearance here. Three weeks ago when in Washington, she was operated on for a slight affection of the throat. She has entirely recovered from this trouble and was able to appear with Mr. Sothern in New Orleans during all of last week.

It is a matter of interest that the company supporting Sothern and Marlowe has remained intact during the past six years, and was originally chosen on account of the ability of each player in the leading blank verse. Some of the well known players who will appear with Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe are: Frederick Lewis, Roland Buckton, Thomas Coleman, William Harris, John Taylor, Francis Sanderson, Malcolm Bradley, Mayne Linton, Nora Lamson, Millicent McLaughlin and Ina Goldsmith.

Sothern and Marlowe appeal to the best in the theatre of this day, and what with their splendid talents and the superb Shakespearean productions they offer, they are one of the most compelling influences of the American stage.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Editor Gazette: The improvements of the times do have some points which could be still more improved as all those who agree who walked yesterday in the glorious sunshine in water ankle deep at times on our "up-to-date" cement sidewalks. We sigh for the oldtime wood walk which was up far enough from the ground to allow the melt from the snow each side room to flow alongside or underneath the foot to just stay where it was. Really isn't it peculiar that those in charge of the laying of these permanent walks should not have thought to boost the height above the water level? As it is it makes no difference whether one shows the snow from the walk or not, the least melting and it becomes a waterway, and after a night's freeze skating could be used to good advantage. It isn't too late for some bright mind to look into this matter for future walk building. Mayhap the new commissioners will become interested. It wouldn't be a bad thing for them to do.

MRS. J. T. WRIGHT DIED THIS MORNING

Entire City Mourns Passing of Woman of Noble Christian Character. At Her Home This Morning.

It will bring sorrow to many to learn that Mrs. Josiah T. Wright passed away at her home at 10:45 o'clock this morning, and yet no surprise will be occasioned by this announcement, for she had long labored in her bed ever since the early morning of January 9th, when she fell in her chamber and fractured her right hip.

Mrs. Wright was born of English stock, in Auburn, New York, August 21st, 1831. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Hunt of that city. She had one brother, Lewis Hunt, who formerly lived in Janesville, but is now a resident of Auburn. She also had three sisters, Mrs. Lewis F. Lyon of Auburn, who survives her, and Miss Sarah H. Hunt and Miss Helen E. Hunt, who have been dead for a number of years. Miss Helen Hunt was a member of the family of Mrs. Wright at the time of her death, and was beloved and mourned by a host of people, in all parts of the world.

Mrs. Wright was married to the late Josiah T. Wright, April 17th, 1855, at her father's home in Auburn and came at once with her husband to Janesville. Their first home was in the fourth ward, in what was long known as the "Palmer House." In 1857 they removed to their new home in the first ward, where Mrs. Wright had her residence until her death. Two children were born of the marriage, but neither of them survived infancy.

Mr. and Mrs. Wright celebrated their golden wedding in 1905. Mr. Wright's death occurred January 20th, 1911, and was due to apoplexy.

Mrs. Wright united with the Congregational church of Janesville February 21st, 1855, by letter from the Presbyterian church at Auburn. Her church interests, outside of the immediate concerns of her home, were always first to her. She had a Sunday school class of matrons for many years, and although the weather was extremely cold and the difficulty for her to get out was great, she was in her place as teacher on the Sunday preceding her accident.

Mrs. Wright cherished the patriotic traditions of her ancestors, and participated in the struggle for independence and she was an enthusiastic member of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She was a member of the Woman's History Class and a regular attendant at its meetings. She was a charter member of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A., and president of that organization until last fall, when, because of her infirmities, she was constrained to lay down the cares of that office. On the evening of January 18th, 1912, the pastor and a number of the members of the church were present at the mid-week service of the church, held at her request in her home, and she was greatly delighted and comforted because of this service. Her friends remarked upon her apparent health and vigor, but on the following morning her fatal accident occurred. She was a patient sufferer and retained her mental consciousness until almost the end. Her brother arrived from New York on Friday evening and although she did not speak, she gave indication on Saturday morning that she aware of his presence.

The funeral will occur at her home, 323 Mineral Point avenue, Wednesday afternoon, at three o'clock, and will be conducted by her pastor, Dr. Benson. Friends are requested to refrain from sending flowers.

The triumphal entry of Johnny Kilbane, conqueror of Abe Attell, to Cleveland on March 17th, will be an spectacle as any ancient warrior's homeward. JACK WHITE.
RATED HARDEST HITTER.

Los Angeles.—When Jack White meets Joe Rivers, the Mexican, next Saturday, the pugilistic spot light will be switched down to Los Angeles and the fighting world will watch the returns of this bout as they have few recent encounters. The fighting ability of Rivers is an unknown quantity. On the other hand Jack White of Chicago, is referred to by experts as the hardest hitter since Herrera. They will weigh in at 120 pounds at 10 o'clock in the morning. This will be White's first appearance in a Californian staged bout. Should he defeat the Mexican he will be in line for the best man at his weight.

THE THEATERS

SOTHERN'S SMILELESS CURTAIN CALL.

E. H. Sothern, who with Julia Marlowe will shortly appear in this city, was lately severely criticized for never smiling when taking a curtain call. It is well known to his friends that Mr. Sothern is a most jovial person. Consequently, this smileless curtain call has been an anomaly to the theatergoer. An actor who was long a member of Mr. Sothern's company has a plausible reason for his assumed gloominess. He says that Mr. Sothern fears the reputation of his father, who was a notorious practical joker. Mr. Sothern has tendencies in that direction himself and so when he comes before the audience he holds himself in check. We see the real Sothern in "Taming of the Shrew" and in measure, as Jacques, in "As You Like It."

JULIA MARLOWE'S FIRST JULIET DRESS.

When a friend lately called on Julia Marlowe, who with E. H. Sothern will shortly appear in this city, the actress knelt before a beautiful cedar chest; she opened it and drew forth what looked like a ball gown of centuries gone by. "That," explained Miss Marlowe with a wistful smile, "is my first Juliet dress, and I made it all myself, every stitch of it. I had to; there was no other way, and I did so crave to play the part."

HOWE'S TRAVELOGUE.

"Those who saw the fighting fleet could not fail to be struck with its high military efficiency and must have been proud of its personnel," said President Taft after gazing with admiration at the grandest naval pageant this hemisphere has ever seen. While he was absorbed in the thrilling spectacle afforded by this legion of the wave thundering salutes to him as it passed out to sea in a fifty knot gale, Lyman H. Howe's camera men were busily engaged in photographing it for the benefit of the entire nation. The splendid animation of the gallantly adorned battleship fleet may be seen at the Myers Theater March 26 and 27. The dreadnoughts came so close to the dispatch boat Dolphin, which conveyed the Secretary of the Navy and Mr. Howe's photographers, that the ponderous engines of destruction which gleamed from sides and turrets are plainly visible. At first the entire fleet is shown on "dress parade" with flags and bunting blowing gaily in the breeze. Then their gaudy appearance changes and the finest battleships in the world are seen steaming swiftly down the river in all the pomp of war.

A pictorial tour to the shrines of beauty and history in Rome, Pisa, Naples and Florence comprises another of the important subjects in the new program. Industrial Italy is represented by scenes from the famous marble quarries at Carrara, while the military phase of the country is shown by the skill, daring and splendid horsemanship of a troop of Italian cavalry. Snow wonders of the Grand River Canon, Colorado, such views showing the adventures of three Alpine climbers in ascending majestic peaks to points above the clouds; the flight of a hydroplane through water and air, and hunting by aeroplane are but a few of the many other scenes of vital interest showing the very latest achievements of human endeavor.

KNOX PRESENCE IN LATIN REPUBLICS

WILL DO MUCH TO BRING ABOUT TRADE RESULTS.

IS MOST OPPORTUNE

Secretary of State is Making Many Friends on His South American Trip.

San Jose, Costa Rica, March 18.—Secretary of State Knox's tour to the Central American republics in the interests of international amity has pleased him immensely.

Panama received him with unusual hospitality. Before the Secretary arrived in Panama word had gone out from the Roosevelt camp that the United States government favored the reelection of their leader and on the morning that Mr. Knox arrived at the capital an interview with Roosevelt appeared in the local press in which he said in substance that the visit of the American Secretary of State indicated that the United States desired that Panamanians should elect a president who was the real choice of the people and that he was satisfied that the real choice of the people was himself.

Thus, the Secretary of State was confronted with a very general feeling that in some way the United States reserved a right to influence Panamanian political affairs. Conversation with men in and out of the government, natives and foreigners, showed plainly that this feeling was the one weak strand in the tie binding the United States and Panama.

The first address of the Secretary went far to dispel this. He made it plain that his mission concerned international relations and not the internal affairs of the republics visited.

Apparently the effect was excellent and government officials and politicians on the outside who had not spoken together for weeks hunted together and no committee men worked harmoniously to make the visit of the Secretary and his party personally enjoyable and profitable from a diplomatic standpoint.

In Costa Rica there has been a very general belief that the United States is determined to bring about a union of Central American republics. "This is not admitted officially, but one cannot talk with the American citizen for five minutes without receiving this impression."

In a private interview for the press, President Jimenez, while minimizing the effect of this sentiment on the relations of Costa Rica and the United States, nevertheless made plain his own views on the subject of a united Central America.

"Why," said he, "should we unite with other republics, some of whom have internal quarrels? We, with an army of only three hundred men, continue at peace and devote our energies to developing our country. Our government is stable. We have no revolutions. We are working out our own salvation in our own way. Why should we unite and against whom? Europe? Uncle Sam protects us from her. Against the United States? That is absurd. In such an alliance we would have nothing

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

Mild weather conditions prevail throughout the country today and the distribution of atmospheric pressure indicates the continuance of fair weather with mild temperatures for several days at least.

The barometric depression that was in the northern Rocky Mountain region on Saturday, moved eastward over the Plains of the Dakotas and Minnesota, over Lake Superior and is now in eastern Ontario. It was attended by showers yesterday in Wisconsin and the upper Lake region. It is followed by another area of low atmospheric pressure in Montana and western Canada, which insures southerly winds, and fair, warm weather in the Central States. The barometer is slightly above normal in the South and Southwest and the weather is generally fair there. There have been heavy local rains in Florida, and light rains in the Columbia basin.

to gain and everything to lose."

When it is recalled that President Jimenez was elected as a pronounced anti-American the following remarks by him appear significant of the changed attitude on the part of this government:

"When I entered office it was expected," he said, "that the United States would insist on refunding our national debt. On the contrary, your government has never in any way interfered or sought to interfere with my administration. We have been allowed to settle our own domestic difficulties. Our relations have been most cordial. Now what we need is more money and more aid in this country. You will find here many of your fellow countrymen managing large capital of their own, of persons who reside in the United States. Far from frowning upon their good luck we are pleased to see it and as their gains are not derived through legislative favors, their prosperity does not offend, but on the contrary, helps to augment vigorously the prosperity of the nation." Again he said:

"Mr. Knox is a charming man whom we are honored and happy to welcome. As I have told the Secretary, the intercourse between Costa Rica and the United States has been without incident or accident with the exception of the present incident of the Secretary's trip to see us at home, and I wish that this exception might be the rule."

The sincerity and cordiality of the President represents the seeming general attitude toward Mr. Knox and his party. They have been most intelligently entertained. Among the pretty compliments and frequent occasions was the lifting of their hats to the men in the vicinity whenever, as often happened, the National Band played the "Star Spangled Banner."

The papers have given space to the visit with pictures and biographical sketches of the Secretary and his family, but nothing of an unkindly nature has appeared. The artist of a local humorous weekly has had a good deal of fun with the Secretary caricaturing him as a ferocious wielder of the "big stick" but it was all in the best of humor and very well done, too. Another paper represented him as Don Quixote attacking imaginary enemies in Central America, one paper pictured him as looking at Costa Rica through reversed glasses, and suggesting that he turn his glasses about and see things as they are.

AS TO ROOSEVELT.

While the Gazette does not approve of the attitude and doctrine of William Jennings Bryan, still parts of his speech on Saturday at the Myers theatre are deserving of special attention, particularly his reference to Roosevelt. In this connection the great Commander said:

"If his candidacy is an indictment of the administration, his nomination would be an indictment against the republican party. Suppose Roosevelt is nominated; you must then admit that the party has fallen so low that there is nobody else in it whom the people trust, and if nominated he will find that a third term cannot be dissolved in a cup of coffee. Senator Beveridge undertook the other day to justify the colonel's candidacy by saying that if it does nothing else it will put an end to this silly sentiment about a third term. But Washington, and Jefferson, and Jackson, and others of our presidents did not regard it as a silly sentiment, and neither did the great American people so regard it in Grant's time. We need a man who can serve the people with sagacity and purpose. But Mr. Roosevelt is not even content with two terms, and can't be persuaded that the people will not give him that which the writers of the Declaration of Independence would not ask, and what the people would not bestow.

"If Mr. Roosevelt is to be the leader of the progressive movement in this country, we shall have to ask why the people have passed over the man who started the movement long before Roosevelt could spell the word. If the republican party is to be progressive, then why should not the honors go to the man who led the way. I saw La Follette cast out of the republican national convention eight years ago—a convention which Mr. Roosevelt completely dominated. Yet Mr. Roosevelt never raised a finger in his support. Again I saw Mr. La Follette stand alone on the republican side in the senate, and when he rose to speak, those old fossils representing the special interests marched out in a body to show him their contempt. He only stopped long enough to tell them that at no distant day their seats would be vacated permanently. And how true has it not been? I'll not believe that the people in the republican party will turn down the man who started the reform and bestow the honors upon a man who has never lifted him and who has never shown him any consideration."

Assuming Roosevelt's record in railroad and trust regulation, Mr. Bryan declared there were more trusts when Roosevelt went in than when he came out.

"And he dare not say a word about the steel trust, which supported him. He never got an honor which he did not get by the help of the money power."

THE PRIMARY.

Tomorrow Janesville votes for the first time for candidates for mayor and commissioners. The list of candidates is a long one and all the aspirants for office doubtless have warm friends that hope for their ultimate success. Slates have doubtless been made by interested politicians, but it is going to be the will of the people that rules and nominates the two candidates for mayor and four for commissioners who will be voted on at the April election.

On January 23, the voters of Janesville showed their decided disapproval of the method and manner of the way in which city affairs were being conducted, and voted for a change of management. The responsibilities of the men who will conduct the affairs of the city after the April election is great. They will have to re-organize the entire system of government and create new departments and begin new work. Their duties are manifold and they will need to devote their best energies to conducting the municipal affairs.

Whoever is chosen, whoever is elected the Gazette speaks the hearty support of the citizens in their behalf. Their work will not be easy, their tasks hard ones at best, and they should be given all the support possible by citizens generally. They should play no favorites in their administration; the same law should apply to all, rich or poor, influential or without. What is "sauce for the goose is also sauce for the gander" and all taxpayers should be given the full benefit of their taxes, regardless of any political influence they might have.

At the polls tomorrow it is to be hoped the best men possible will be selected. Each individual voter casts his ballot for one candidate for mayor and two for commissioners. That is, he crosses after three names on his ticket. The two candidates for mayor having the highest number of votes are placed on the April election ticket and the four candidates for councilmen having the most votes also go on this ticket. If the best men are not chosen and you stay away from the polls you have no complaint to make as the election booths are open from early morning until seven so that all will have ample time to cast their ballots.

Under the corrupt practice law there can be no poll workers, no checkers, no riders, or even rigs used in the interests of the various candidates. There will be no one to come around to take you to the voting place; you will have to either walk or go by street car. It is up to the voter himself to make his selection and the will of the majority rules.

CAMPAIGN ISSUES.

A voter has been convinced by the feeble arguments advanced by one of the candidates for mayor in his house to house dodger, there is no argument able to be advanced to dispel this view. The fact that some of the big corporations will receive a rebate from their old taxes, that the small property-owner will pay more, that the council was forced to appropriate more money in their budget owing to the water rate decision, that increase to be paid by the taxpayer; that there will be no real payment of sixty-five thousand dollars extra taxes next fall, but merely a readjustment; that if the city's value is increased from ten to fifteen millions the county board of equalization will tax Janesville more than ever, and that the state tax paid by Janesville will be greater, all have apparently no bearing on the case. It is easy enough to really prevail upon so frequently that you become convinced, that your prevails are true, but to go about barefacedly and discuss public matters with entire disregard for the truth, as has been done in the present campaign, means something to the taxpayers that they should stop and consider before placing the financial affairs of the city in the hands of such a man.

Organizing for the purpose of keeping the West Side rink open for public gatherings and exhibitions might be a good plan on the part of some public-spirited citizens.

It is safe to say that everyone will be glad to welcome spring just as quick as she can make her appearance.

What a great little guesser that ground hog was. He hit it right the very first time.

In case of a coal strike you might use the coal bin for a mushroom bed.

Voice of the People

The Rubaiyat of Hopeless Harry.

Wake! For the sun by which I fall would light him "My better electric light." And gas light, too, which I alone, unaided, (Give you for nothing—except at night.

Before the dreams of psychic power died, His ringing voice in Janesville loudly cried, "When all the booths are well prepared within, Why needs the foolish 'small taxpayer outside?"

And, as the clock struck, those who stood before The booths shouted—"Open to us the door!"

You know this is our only chance to have our say, And, voting once or twice, return no more."

Now latent power reviving old desires— And many a candidate to solitude retired;

"Vox populi"—that same, good old right bower—

Yes, indeed, he's gone with all his prose,

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By Roy K. Moulton.

SPUR OF THE MOMENT—

THE SPELLBINDER.

His voice is gently pleading as to tone And epigrams roll blithely from his tongue, He tells some merry stories of his own, That Henry VIII enjoyed when he was young; The opposition's arguments he chokes, The rival candidate he loves to mock, By landing out sidesplitting quips and jokes, From Doc Hostetter's Family Album.

His argument is terse and to the point, He asks, "Why does a chicken cross the street," His honors laugh themselves all out of joint, And say he won a victory complete, His first joke makes the enemy look sick, His second starts the foe upon the run, His third joke sends them going double-quick, His fourth one sees the party's battle won.

"How will the trusts be wiped out from the map?" I'll tell you, Then a joke comes without fail, "You ask me how about the noxious 'Jap,'" "It's this way," then he tells another tale, "When will we fix the tariff? Ah!" says he, "That's easy, Listen well and you shall hear."

He tells a funny story, then with glee, One that we heard in vaudeville last year, He works up to his climax swift and sure, And mops his forehead and swings his arms— "This mighty nation's certain to endure, Throughout the ages, free from lies and harm," The audience then gives a rousing cheer, The band plays and the people leave the hall;

And "Square Deal Advocate," where?

No one knows, Nor cares, perhaps—he won't come here, His going hence was as the wind blows.

How oft, alas, he did eagerly frequent, Psyche and seer; and heard great argument Or what he might accomplish, as mayor, But his Small Taxpayer would not consent!

"With them the seed of wisdom did I sow, That I was their champion I proudly did show; And this was all the harvest that I reaped— 'I came like thunder—like hot air I go.'"

"There was the door to which I found no key; 'Somehow or other the masses got next to me), A little bunk awhile I gave of me to 'Thee, And when elected there would be no thee, but ME."

Then of the justice that works behind— The veil was lifted and on my hands I find A sorry muddle of messes unexplained; I cut the melon and get only the rind.

You know, my friends, I did my best And had your flourishing city re-possessed; I had to do something to show my power— You pay for the trial along with the rest.

Ah, but my computations, people say, Reduced the taxes to better reckoning? Ay— (That was striking from the calendar Janesville of tomorrow to that of yesterday),

The moving finger writes; and, having writ, Moves on; nor all his luncheon nor wit Shall mislead the taxpayer—Great or small— Into thinking he's helped Janesville—not a whit.

Tomorrow, the primary will spell his end— "More taxes! More taxes for the 'UP' to spend!"— "That 'Reincarnation' with this earthly mission— Ah, whence?—More chance—Whither? Who cares?"

Oh! had he heard the cant of flatter-ing friend Admire his forehead's Apollonic bend— And Lincoln features, brain and character— And him for mayor!—Nix—THE END.)

Household Remedy

Taken in the Spring for Years.

Ralph Rust, Wills, Mich., writes: "Hood's Sarsaparilla has been a household remedy in our home as long as I can remember. I have taken it in the spring for several years. It has no equal for cleansing the blood and ex-pelling the humors that accumulate during the winter, being a purifier and exposed to bad weather, my system is often affected, and I often take Hood's Sarsaparilla with good results. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself. There is no 'just as good.' I get it today in usual liquid form or tablets called Sarsatabs."

WAS EMERY DUST PUT INTO THE BEARINGS?

RUMOR THAT MISCREANT TRIED TO INJURE SEVERAL AUTOS EXHIBITED AT RINK.

A SUCCESSFUL SHOW

Hundreds Attended the Big Attraction And Expressed Their Approval of the Affair.

There is a persistent rumor current on the streets today that some miscreant either put emery dust in the oil cups of several of the machines on exhibition at the auto show at the West Side rink Saturday night or early Sunday morning, or blew the dust itself into the bearings of the various machines.

Several of the exhibitors had heard the rumor but each avowed that it was some other make of machine that was injured and not their own but all were certain none of the cars were injured. It is believed to have been done by some who either gained entrance to the exhibit hall Saturday night or early Sunday morning and sought to ruin the cars that were affected.

Aside from this unpleasantness the whole show was a success. Over five hundred persons attended the exhibit on Saturday, many being dealers from Madison and Milwaukee and almost as many availed themselves of the chance to visit the show on Sunday. The decorations, the demonstration of the workings of the various machines all proved most interesting and many sales were reported during the four days the show was in progress.

Much credit is due to Secretary Lane of the Commercial Club and the local automobile agents who made the affair a success. It received most flattering comment throughout the state press as one of the best shows in the state and it is expected it will be an annual affair.

MAKING FOUNDATION FOR STEAM TURBINE

Preliminary Work Begun on Installation of New Unit at Electric Company's City Power Plant.

Preliminary work has been begun toward the installation of the new 500 kilowatt turbine. The new turbine is a Parsons type steam turbine generating set in the city power plant of the Janesville Electric Company. 125 kilowatt alternating current dynamo that occupied the southeast corner of the generator room has been moved to the other side of the main power shaft and put in the place of a direct current dynamo that has been taken out. The turbine generator will be placed in the corner where the alternator stood and occupy a floor space of 24x16 feet. Men are now cutting an opening in the concrete floor for its foundation and a canvas curtain enclosure has been made around the space to prevent dirt from flying into the bearings of the machinery.

Below the new turbine and generator will be placed a small Turry turbine which will operate two centrifugal pumps and other condensing apparatus. To make room for these an excavation eleven feet deep will be made. The new generating unit was contracted for delivery April 1, but it is not expected that the foundation will be ready for it by that time. The turbine generator will run at 3,600 revolutions a minute and generate approximately 700 horsepower, the alternating current being delivered at 2,300 volts pressure.

COMMON COUNCIL TO MEET THIS EVENING

Question of Opening Theatres on Sunday Will Probably Be Considered Visiting Nurse Ordinance.

Sunday opening of theatres will be brought up for consideration at the regular meeting of the Common Council to be held this evening and the proposition submitted to a vote unless a motion is introduced and passed deferring action in the matter. The committee appointed by Mayor Nichols to report on the advisability of the proposed move, Aldermen Connolly, Duffin and Spohn, was prepared to present its findings at the adjourned meeting called for last Friday evening, but through failure to secure a quorum no meeting could be held.

Another question of importance to be submitted is the creation of the office of visiting nurse. An ordinance providing for this office has been drawn up by City Attorney Maxfield, but it has with the council to determine what the salary will be, that not being named in the draft.

NO CHARGES FILED WITH COMMISSION

Action of the Council in Asking That Fire Chief's Work at Bassett & Echlin Fire be Investigated Not Legal.

No official charges have been filed with the Fire and Police Commission relative to the action of the Chief of the Fire Department at the fire which destroyed the Bassett and Echlin factory. The action of the council in asking for an investigation is not sufficient and until charges are filed specifically they can take no steps. This was the opinion given out by members of the commission today.

FUNERAL OF JAMES HARRIS HELD TODAY

Hundreds Viewed Remains as They Lay in State.—Beautiful Floral Tributes Presented.

Hundreds of friends and acquaintances of the late James Harris, employee, business associate, fraternal brother, viewed his remains today as they lay in state at the Congregational church, between the hours of twelve and two o'clock, and attended the public services which were held thereafter. Beautiful floral designs, sprays, and bouquets were heaped high about the casket which was almost hidden beneath them. These tributes to his memory came from many sources. Friends brought among them a great floral spray from the employees of the Janesville Bank Wire company, a large design of orchids, violets and lilies of the valley, from the Parks Lumber company, a wreath of lilies of the valley from the board of directors of the Janesville Machine company, a spray of American Beauty roses and violets from the Wire and Steel company of Chicago, a design from All Sons Society, and a keystone design from the Masonic lodge of which he was a member.

Services were conducted at 2:30 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. Benton, who paid a fine tribute to the virtues and sturdy qualities of Mr. Harris. A mixed quartette sang several selections appropriate and fitting for the occasion. The remains were borne to the door at the close of the services by eight pall bearers: Messrs. Lawia Kramer, Fred Viney, Frank Zahn, Julia Shilling, William Rauch, Fred Carroll, William Parrish and J. P. Hendling. They were accompanied by as many honorary pall bearers: Messrs. Fred Capello, J. A. Craig, N. L. Carlo, James Pifford, W. F. Bosworth, T. O. Howe, Frank Jackson, and Fred Clements. Burial was made in Oak Hill cemetery.

Egg prices are prophesied to keep close to their present point until the end of March at least, and possibly longer, with plenty of the article for the trade. Since the prices dropped a short time ago and the supply began to increase the trade has been

STORE DAMAGED BY BURSTED BOILERS

Basement of Grange Store Flooded and Furnace Ruined Saturday Morning—Fire Narrowly Averted.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Evansville, March 18.—A very unpleasant surprise awaited the Grangers at their store Saturday morning. Considerable smoke was discovered on the ground floor rooms, and fears of fire were aroused, but on investigation it was found that an open faucet, in the furnace boiler, had let the water out, flooding the basement floors. The smoking boilers were dry and bursted badly, the huge furnace being practically ruined. Although a man was sent to Chicago with all possible haste, to secure repairs it will be some days before the damage can be repaired and the furnace be brought into running order again. It was a narrow escape from a serious conflagration and will be an expensive experience for the Grangers.

HEART AND HOME TALKS BY BARBARA BOYD

One Kind Of Employer.

THE mother was sitting with a look of weary resignation on her face, gazing out the front window. A neighbor who was passing, nodded, and then decided to drop in for a chat.

"As usual, I'm waiting supper for Mame," said the mother in a tired voice. "These men sit around and talk all day, and then about four o'clock they think of their letters, and poor Mame has to stay there until half-past six and seven to get them out. Of course she can't say anything."

The neighbor nodded sympathetically. "No, of course, she can't. I should think they would want to get home themselves."

"Bless you, they do go home. They let Mame send the letters out. She's very careful. And they know they can rely upon her. She's been with them a long while. They pay her a good salary. And they give her twenty-five dollars for a Christmas present. They're good to her—in a way."

Mame's experience is not exceptional. In a congress of stenographers, probably the majority of those who work in small offices could tell the same tale.

Their employers are not selfish men, either; at least, they don't think they are. If you asked them, they would tell you in all honesty that they treated their stenographers well. They never think that this matter of keeping a stenographer a half an hour or an hour late at night is of any consequence. If you mildly suggested that it was unjust, they would expostulate that the stenographer didn't have anything to do half the time anyway, and that she had no right to kick at a little thing like that. Indeed, they would feel quite injured at the very thought.

But it is injustice nevertheless. When a man engages a stenographer, if he tells her that her hours will be until half-past six or seven, maybe eight, because he dictates his letters late, she has at least some ground to go upon. She knows what sort of position she is taking. She can make her arrangements accordingly. But if he tells her that her hours are from nine to five, and then keeps her an hour or two longer, it is unjust. That she has nothing to do part of the time is no excuse. This is not her fault. And she is giving her time, even though she sits idle. When she is giving an hour or so more, she is giving an hour or so that is not paid for—and there is no squirming out of that fact. Because she doesn't complain doesn't alter the case. She doesn't complain probably because she doesn't want to lose her position. But it is all the more unfair to take advantage of her dependence.

If, now and then, extra business necessitates this overwork, no loyal stenographer complains. The right sort of business girl will buckle down then and do her best without murmuring. But it is the thoughtlessness to which she objects. And in most offices where this practice prevails, it is pure thoughtlessness or indifference on the employer's part. She's paid for what she does, he says to himself, and he doesn't care how unjust his action may be, nor how much it inconveniences her.

For it does inconvenience her, as every stenographer can testify. If she lives at any distance from the office, and most stenographers do, it means a late supper or dinner. Not only is the machinery of the home put out of order, but probably her meal is warmed up and eaten alone. If she is going out in the evening, it means a nervous rush and hurry, perhaps with no time for the meal at all. If it does nothing else, it shortens her evening; and the evening is the only time, excepting Sunday, that she has for herself.

An employer will say these details do not concern him. But they do concern him; inasmuch as we should all have some consideration for the welfare of others. And furthermore, this sort of living will mean in the course of time, a less capable worker.

But after all, it is injustice to the stenographer and thoughtlessness on the part of the employer. And since the cause is so little and the results so big, cannot the remedy be applied?

Barbara Boyd.

The Evening Chit-Chat BY RUTH CAMERON

THE very sweetest lady I know, that dear, unselfish saint, in fact, on whose prayers I place my best hopes of Heaven—I don't suppose I need to identify her further to anyone who has a mother—has a regular habit of saying at Sunday dinner, "This morning in church I thought—"

What she thought may have been the advisability of dyeing my light blue house gown dark blue next winter, or it may have been a recollection that we had forgotten to call up Aunt Maria to ask her about Wednesday, or it may have been a wondering if the cut work shirt up where she couldn't get at our Sunday dinner, but it is always at astonishingly infrequent intervals with the subject of the sermon.

And yet the author of these homilies is, as I said before, the very sweetest lady I know. Now if she thus betrays the presence of secular thoughts at a time when one should be thinking only of sermons and devotions, what about the rest of us? Truly it is an appalling thought.

How often do you listen straight through to a sermon over half an hour in length, and not go off on a single irrelevant train of thought? Perhaps I'm more tentative or rattle-brained than most people, but as for myself, I will frankly admit that I could scarcely claim half a dozen such occasions. In a lifetime.

Some years ago, I used to attend a fine old church which was quaintly and beautifully finished in natural beams. Said the minister's wife one day to a group of us, "I think the architecture of this church is beautiful. What about the rest of us? Truly it is an appalling thought."

When I am not especially interested in the sermon, I just close my eyes and look up at those great beams.

And she was the minister's wife, the first lady of the church, with a convincing reason, my two or three of them, if anyone ever had, for listening to every word of the sermon!

Another dear, good woman admits frankly that she plans all the children's clothes in church.

What are you going to do about it? May I offer two or three little suggestions?

My first is not to have any sermons over half an hour long, preferably nearer the fifteen-minute mark. A wicked shortening of one's devotion, you say? I don't see it that way. I think we could listen to a fifteen-minute sermon throughout, and surely that's better than hearing a few words of a longer discourse.

Another is for ministers to talk instead of preach. As I say, there have been a few occasions when I listened to the whole sermon. On most of these I sat under a minister who seldom raises his voice; never gets oratorical or audience-y, but just talks as if he were talking right to me, whereupon I feel in courtesy bound to listen to him just as I would to anyone who was talking to me. Whereas, with a minister who is preaching, I feel that he is addressing an audience with a capital A, and it doesn't really matter whether I listen or not.

My third suggestion is for the audience—for you and me, in other words. And it is for us to realize that we don't honor God and worship Him, and do our duty by sitting in a pew and thinking of clothes and pleasure and business, any more than by sitting at home and thinking of those things.

Presumably when we go to church we are dedicating a certain amount of time to honoring and worshipping God, and time spent in selfish secular thoughts is stolen from this dedicated time. Perhaps if we bolstered up our resolutions to really listen, by that point of view we might do a bit better.

Here's good luck to you—and me.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

Some of the Latest Silver Pieces for the Table.

By Allen E. Whitaker.

Looking over the beautiful things in a silver shop my attention was called to the little condiment sets which appear like miniature casters with very light frame work. Others are really small casters but of a low footed shape. Another way of serving condiments is on a small handled tray.

Silver or cut glass dishes with spoon and a pepper bottle to match are yet preferred by many housewives who have the taste in table setting and who do not like the individual service or the castor. The sets come in most artistic shapes and some of them are reproductions of old forms that have never been equalled.

The common use of the bread and butter plate long ago put into the back ground the individual butter plate which is now associated merely with restaurant service.

The butter ball dishes are things of beauty and of expense too if one is inclined to pay the price. These dishes may be used also for relishes and for sliced lemon while those with handles are appropriate for hot bonas. The plate portion is of cut or etched glass and the rims of silver; some are footed and others have handles and the cost runs all the way from a dollar and a quarter to six dollars. Serving forks to go with the dishes cost as low as seventy-five cents.

It is not always necessary to have the butter made up into balls for it is quite as attractive if cut neatly into small cubes which may be piled on the butter dish and served with a fork in the same manner as the balls.

When bon bon dishes are the topic there is hardly an end to the variety of dainty little affairs that might be described. Some of the dishes have handles, others have feet, pierced rim and some have a few have glass linings. Shoppers run all the way from a flat plate to a vase-like form.

Sets of bon bon dishes including one large and a dozen small ones come almost entirely with pierced rims after very old designs.

The jolly glass holder is among the pretty old silver pieces for the table that are of real use. The common glass is set inside and a silver cover put on top. Marmalade holders to match are made and both are in open or pierced pattern. Serving spoons with round bowls match the jars.

Other marmalade jars are of cut glass with engraved silver covers and some have a plate to put under the jar but this adds nothing to its beauty or usefulness.

Syrup pitchers change little and one that your grandmother owned, if it was of fine quality, is as acceptable today as any in the shops.

The tea making spoon has largely taken the place of the tea ball and cost fifty cents to four or five dollars.

While the spoon holder is seldom seen on the table it is convenient for keeping a reserve supply on the side board or serving table. The form is always low and flat and some are exactly like a miniature serving tray.

Among the now larger pieces of silver are the casserole silver frame and cover which are much coveted by housewives. Even the common-place baked bean is served from a pot placed in a handled silver dish with a cover.

Silver bread trays are nearly all of oval shape and measure not over twelve inches in length. Toast racks with solid ends that may be engraved cost twice as much as those without and one of either style is an attractive addition to the breakfast table.

GIVES 2100 POKER. Palm Beach, Fla.—Cards, roulette, and nearly all of the various phases of gambling known at Monte Carlo were offered the guests to try their luck at.

Poker chips—$100 worth to each guest—are the latest thing in society dinner favors. Mrs. Elmer Black, former Chicago society woman, originated the scheme at an elaborate and unique entertainment recently given by her at Palm Beach, and even the most daring of the winter resorts so-consider the last word in novelties. One hundred dollars' worth of gambling gratia, followed an elaborate dinner. Each guest was "staked" to that amount by the fair hostess who took many things at the various games of chance. Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish even, in her palmist days and abetted by the ever resourceful Harry Lehr never made society keep harder over a single function, and Palm Beach is still "sitting up" over the entertainment contrived by Mrs. Black.

EGGLESS FOODS.

When eggs are forty and fifty cents a dozen one feels inclined to look for dishes that call for few or no eggs. Here are a few for those of us who must economize:

Oatmeal Cookies.—A cup of fine oatmeal (this may be made finer by putting it through the meat grinder), a cup of flour, a half cup of lard or butter and lard mixed, a half cup of milk, two-thirds of a cup of sugar and a fourth of a teaspoonful of soda, dissolved in milk. A little grated lemon or orange peel and nutmeg, with flour enough to roll thin.

Apple Sauce Cake.—A half cup of shortening, a cup of sugar, a cup of sifted apple sauce, a teaspoonful of soda, one and three-fourths cups of flour, and apples to taste. Add raisins or currants if desired, and bake in small cakes or in a loaf.

Hot Water Gingerbread.—Dissolve in a cup of boiling water two teaspoonfuls of soda; add a cup of molasses, a quarter of a cup of melted shortening, and cinnamon, ginger, clove and nutmeg to taste. Use flour enough for a soft batter and bake in small patty tins. These are delicious with apple sauce and cottage cheese for luncheon or a dessert.

Feather Muffins.—Take a cup of milk, a tablespoonful of melted lard or butter, a half teaspoon of salt, a tablespoonful of sugar and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Mix together with flour enough to make a batter as stiff as an ordinary cake batter. Bake in muffin rings.

No Tigers in Africa. The natives of Africa fear the leopard almost as much as they do the lion. Once in a while some traveler tells of tigers in Africa. No tigers are there, but careless writers thus misname the leopard, which has terrors of its own and is scarcely less formidable than the monarch of the Bengalese animal kingdom.

Your Violets May Have Dyspepsia.

With all its fascinations, violet raising is often attended with many disappointments. Perhaps one reason for amateurs having trouble with unhealthy plants is an overrichness of the soil that is given them, for, unlike some other flowers, violets are apt to have a sort of dyspepsia all their own from over-nourishment.

ALL DRUGGISTS

AN ABSTINENCE FROM DRINK DURING LENT

Members of Catholic Societies Said to be Adopting the Practice It Is Said.

Those who are in a position to speak authoritatively state that the practice of total abstinence from alcoholic beverages during Lent is on the increase among the members of the Catholic societies. The practice is very old and dates back to the earliest days of Christianity. During the first ten centuries all Christians were practically under prohibition during fasting times, or over one-third of the year. Advent, including the four weeks preceding Christmas, was a time of fast. The apostles have prescribed that on Wednesday and Friday we should fast until three o'clock. St. Ignatius, who was a disciple of the apostles, and who succeeded St. Peter as bishop of Antioch, wrote: "Do not neglect to fast on Wednesday and Friday giving to the poor what is saved during the fast." Pope Benedict XIV. in the 18th century, in the constitution of the Lenten fast, prescribed abstinence from meat and wine, but one meal a day, and prescribed abstinence from meat and wine, but one meal a day, and prescribed abstinence from meat and wine, but one meal a day.

STURGEON ROE HAS INCREASED VALUE

SHIPPED FROM THE MISSISSIPPI PORTS TO THE EAST AND BECOMES DAINITY CAVIARE.

GREEN TURTLE SOUP

Turtles From Wisconsin Rivers Also Used on Tables of Gourmounds in East.

It has long been known that turtles dug from the mud in the bottom of the Wisconsin rivers and marshes have been shipped to the east to appear on the tables of gourmounds in the guise of deep sea turtles and many a hotel county farmer made extra money during the fall and winter in digging them from their quarters and shipping them east. Wisconsin river and lake turtles are sold wholesale out as caviar after various treatment in eastern factories but it has remained for the Mississippi sturgeon to catch the river sturgeon extract the roe and ship it east to become caviare.

When it is shipped away from the lower Wisconsin and Mississippi towns along the upper Mississippi, a lot of black mass of tiny, shiny, gelatinous globules, the tails or legs in which it is packed are labeled "sturgeon roe." It is the time the product has reached its destination and is being a platter in a New York, London or Paris restaurant it has become "Russian caviare."

The deception is an innocent one, since the roe of the Mississippi sturgeon has been found to be quite equal in delicacy and flavor to that obtained from the sturgeons of the Don and Danube in Russia. The Mississippi product being now on the market, however, sells better under the old familiar name.

Make Millions of Dollars.

For many years Russian fishermen have made millions of dollars annually by gathering and preparing caviare. The sturgeon lives in the northern stretches of the father of waters in enormous numbers, but it was not until about two years ago that Mississippi fishermen, seizing the cue of their Russian brethren, took up roe gathering as a side line. They have found it immensely profitable and the industry is fast taking on good-sized proportions. The "roe can" is a part of every fisherman's outfit and local dealers along the river report that last year they on the average marketed 2,000 to 3,000 pounds of the roe. A quarter million pounds probably is a low estimate of the total yield. A good deal of it was shipped abroad as American caviar has not yet acquired the caviare habit to the same extent that the people of a number of European countries have.

Sturgeon Is Prolific.

The sturgeon, he it Russian or a native of the Mississippi, is enormously prolific. About 3,000,000 eggs is the average production of a female in a season. Not infrequently a single roe of the weight of a sturgeon is found to be roe. One caught by a McGregor fisherman last fall weighed fifty pounds. It contained seventeen pounds of the spawn. The roe sold for $14.50. The dressed fish brought $2.50, making a total return to the fisherman of $17.50, or about 25 cents a pound for his fish live weight.

The sturgeon casts its spawn in June in the upper Mississippi. The roe gathering extends from September up until that time. Much of it is taken from sturgeon which the fisherman alone through the ice in winter. Eighty cents per pound is about the average price received by the fishermen.

Caught in Net.

The sturgeon are caught live out in the main channel in the company of the carp, buffalo and sheepshead. Their long, spindle-shaped snout is more pronounced than in the European varieties. With it, like all the rest of the sturgeon tribe, they burrow in the bottom of the river for small fish, snails, and other crustaceans. The Mississippi fishermen find them one of the easiest fish to catch and hauls of several thousand pounds in a single day are frequent occurrences.

After the nets have been reeled in and these sturgeon taken out, immediately search is made for roe. Having found and extracted it the fishermen separate the roe from the web in which they are encased and sell it to the dealers who salt it and put it up in barrels or kegs for shipment.

After the roe has been taken care of many of the fish are dressed, salted and smoked. Smoked Mississippi sturgeon is a food which is gaining rapidly in popularity in eastern markets. The small black-back sturgeon formerly considered worthless for fattening, now is in especial demand, retailing at fifteen and eighteen cents a pound.

SOME LIGHT ON THE GROUND HOG THEORY

One Jansville Man Claims to Have Watched the Little Beasts and Says They Were True Prophets.

The groundhog, meek and lowly creature, of gentle habits and considerable fame in the annals of the countryside, meteorological seer and wheeler of Candlemas day, again claims attention. Long has humanity had more or less faith that if the little animal came from his hibernation on February 2 and stood at the opening of the passageway to his home and saw his shadow stretching away, he at once knew that winter, cold and penetrating, was to rule for six weeks longer; if he saw no shadow, if the sky was overcast and the back of winter, then he divined that the back of winter had been broken and it was safe for him to venture forth and take his chances in the cruel world.

One of little faith have questioned the virtue of the groundhog's philosophy and made sport of Old Probs who based his predictions upon the calculations of the gentle animal. But perhaps we have been a little "pre-vious" in our judgment.

One Jansville man who is interested in birds and beasts is authoritatively for the statement that he has actually seen the groundhog make his weather forecast, in narrative, he watched closely on a farm near the city with a view of discovering if they followed the usual custom.

True to their instincts, they sought their winter quarters about December first, when the proper time arrived, and the eager frosts of December reminded the little fellows that 'twas time to hiko for their hole, they turned full to the upper world and sought solitude in their subterranean bungalow. And there they stayed, true to their tradition, all cuddled up and snoozing away the winter while, but they did not forget the story of Candlemas day and on February 2 they all came out in quest of the mystery of the shadow.

The shadow for this statement made a special trip to the vicinity of their winter home on that day and asserts that the three little fellows came forth, two were sleek and fat and the third sleek. The little fellows took their observations and discovered that the sun was shining bright all day and knowing that their meow was true, that there could be no mistake, they sadly blinked their little eyes and prepared to return to their six-weeks' sleep.

And now comes the interesting part of the story. Last Friday marked the expiration of the six weeks which the "groundhog calendar" had marked for the reappearance of the trio and sure enough, they turned out as sleek as you please, the one that was sleek as sleek, the one that was sleek as sleek, and the one that was sleek as sleek. There is no question of the faithfulness of the story for the gentleman was there and saw the three come forth, all in their March clothes and ready for anything that was happening in their line.

PRESS ASSOCIATION DISPROVES MEASURE

Bills Now Pending Before Congress Are Detrimental to the Public at Large.

The Inland Daily Press Association of which the Gazette is a member, Minneapolis, Kentucky, Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, and Iowa, at the annual meeting held in Chicago, February 20th, discussed as some length House Bill 14050 known as the Richardson Bill, now pending in congress and unanimously adopted a resolution by its committee against it. The Richardson Bill proposed to change the pure food laws so that the sale of prepared foods, proprietary medicines or anything of that nature could not be made excepting by prescription of a physician or registered pharmacist. Following is the resolution:

House Bill 14050. Whereas the language of Section 8 of House Bill 14050 known as the Richardson Bill and now pending in Congress, would, in many cases, work great hardships on publishers and on legitimate advertisers, without any benefit to the public, and even to the detriment of the public, in that it would prevent the advertising of many useful, harmless and meritorious foods and medicines; among which would be food products intended as substitutes for other foods or drinks that are less nutritious, less digestible or more or less injurious; well known and harmless medicaments such as laxatives, irritants, liniments and emollients; antiseptic and sanitary washes, gargles, salves, soaps and powders; besides many other preparations whose merits are undisputed; Therefore, be it

Resolved, That this association disapproves of said section as printed and that the attitude of the association be made known to Congress through our Senators and Representatives.

MILO W. WHITTAKER, STUART H. PERRY, FRANK D. THOMPSON, D. H. WORTHINGTON, Committee.

Discussion also of the proposed change in postal rates from 2 to 1 cent on letter postage took place and a resolution was unanimously adopted as follows:

Postal Rate Resolutions.

Whereas it clearly appears that the large cities and large business interests use a far greater proportion of 2c stamps than the small towns and rural population;

And whereas the inhabitants of the large cities are comparatively small patrons of the second class mails (their publications) being distributed to them by mail;

And whereas the inhabitants of the small towns and the country are the chief patrons of the second class mails and receive practically all of their publications in that manner;

Whereas, in the event of the increase in second-class rates most of the readers of second-class publications in the country and in the small towns; and

Whereas, if first-class letter postage were reduced to one cent, the greater part of the benefit would accrue solely to the large cities and large business interests; and

Whereas, in our opinion there is no public or popular demand whatsoever either for a reduction of first-class rates or for an increase in second-class rates; Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the I. D. P. A. in annual meeting assembled, protest against any change in the existing first-class postage rate; and further

Resolved, That adding second-class rates, insofar as they affect legitimate newspapers and periodicals, are equitable; and that any alteration thereof would result in no public benefit.

Resolved, That we recommend the efforts of the I. D. P. A. administration in securing economy and efficiency in the service; and that we heartily approve of its activity in prosecuting frauds, eliminating all illegitimate publications.

STUART H. PERRY, FRANK D. THOMPSON, D. H. WORTHINGTON, Committee.

"We have tested beers repeatedly, placing the bottles into direct sunlight, and testing the same after one, two, three and five minutes exposure; found that the beer with three and five minutes exposure became undrinkable on account of the peculiar odor developed. The detrimental effect of light upon beer can be successfully counteracted by the employment of brown or dark colored glass bottles."

Proposed Plans For The Y. M. C. A. Building

At a meeting of the board of directors of the local Y. M. C. A. recently, the accompanying plans were adopted on the condition that sufficient money could be obtained to complete the building and leave it free of all debt.

No. 1. Showing front elevation with new dormitories added.

Indebtedness. The estimated cost of an extension of the gallery in the remodeling and furnishing complete, would not exceed the sum of $20,000, and this would give Janesville a complete and modern equipment, up-to-date in every respect and intended to be attractive in every detail. It is conservatively estimated that three hundred and twenty-five men and boys could be engaged in some activity at the same time in the remodeled building if the accepted plans should be completed.

These plans represent many months of work on the part of the board and the examination and rejection of a great many suggestions, with the result that the plans as adopted are as well chosen as possible. Every inch of space is put to some use and the present building will be used wherever possible, in the places where changes have been decided upon. Besides adding to the floor space of the gymnasium, furnishing an auditorium with dividing partitions, providing for a swimming tank, and many other necessary additions, the new plans increase the number of dormitories and make all of the facilities almost double their present size. Much of this is to be done by the utilization of a great deal of space which is at present going to waste in the form of unused storerooms, etc.

The first drawing shows the front elevation of the building as it would appear after remodeling. The only noticeable change is in the roof over the dormitories on the left side of

THE WORK OF THE Y. M. C. A.

My Dear Mr. Editor:
Your interest in all good causes, especially for the welfare of the young, impels me to tell you something of what I saw in my recent visit to Janesville. They have got there a new Y. M. C. A. building costing $100,000, easily the finest of its kind in Wisconsin. It is finely located in the center of the city, just where the young men gather of an evening. It is a handsome building of brick containing gymnasium, swimming pool, and play-rooms for both boys and young men, with a large and tastefully decorated reception hall.

For years the thoughtful people of the city have been longing for such an institution for the uplift and protection of the young men, and at length their dreams were realized by the generosity and far-seeing public spirit of E. B. Putnam and Hon. O. H. Ingram, who gave $20,000 each, and Mrs. Trux, who gave $10,000. These splendid gifts were followed by lesser amounts from about 1,270 other subscribers, and the magnificent building was dedicated free of debt.

Our interest in this noble achievement, however, is not confined to the munificence of a few men and women of means, but of the whole-hearted and entire body of the citizens of Janesville.

This spirit of approval and gratitude for what had been done for the physical and moral welfare of its youth manifested themselves in an overwhelming way on Wednesday last, when practically the entire adult population poured in streams of sight-seers, and delighted participants in the festivities of the occasion. Nothing could be more strongly indicative of the future success of this work than the genial and enthusiastic way the whole people have responded to the leadership of the subscribers and other workers.

I hope the committee having the renovation of our Janesville building in mind will correspond with the chairman of the Eau Claire committee, Mr. W. K. Coffin, and get an idea of what has been done so artistically and suitably in our neighboring city. For if ever money was carefully spent and perfect results obtained it is in the Y. M. C. A. of Eau Claire.

I had the pleasure of addressing a fine body of men and boys in the gymnasium on Tuesday on "The Relation of Education to Citizenship." And if we may gather from the hearty reception of such ideas of the serious responsibility of the young men to the duties and privileges of citizenship we who are giving our money and thought to the work of the Y. M. C. A. are to be encouraged and congratulated. I hope Janesville will rise also to its own great opportunity.

THE WILD OATS PROPOSITION. By Howard L. Rann.

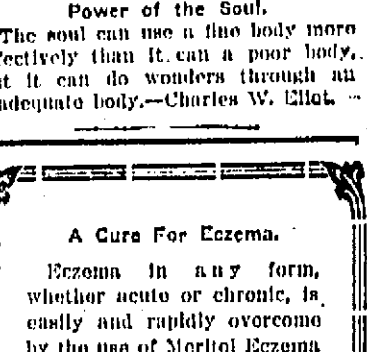

Wild oats are a hardy variety of feathered-edged devilry, which is never recorded a crop failure. It is one of the most popular and expensive cereals. The implement used in planting this crop are usually a poker deck and a half pint; and the cultivating is done with ill-will and free access to father's checking account. The wild oats proposition would result from business faster than the mosquitoes in the Panama canal zone. If the average father showed as much interest in his son as he does in his automobile tires. The boy who never has to account to any body but his night watch, can't have so much to blame for contributing to the plain drunk calendar as the father who doesn't wake up until he has to bail somebody out of the police court. "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" is a nice song, but it doesn't reform anybody so long as the boy is allowed to wander until he can't tell a row of hard maple trees from a Grand Army parade. Some men say that a certain amount of wild oats is a good thing for the system, and keep on planting them until they can't distinguish a daisy from a tray without exposing their hand. The old-fashioned father or mother who took the wild oats proposition in hand with a piece of twine, when it began to stick up out of the ground, usually had something to lean upon in their old age besides painful memories, and a second mortgage on everything in sight. There is a lot of muddled sentiment going to waste in this country as to the utility of wild oats as a ripener of character. The only thing wild oats ever ripened was the nose of a man, but they have turned out some very neat work in this line. The best substitute for wild oats is ten hours a day in overalls, continuing the treatment until Folly's bill and Folly's ally have been left behind.

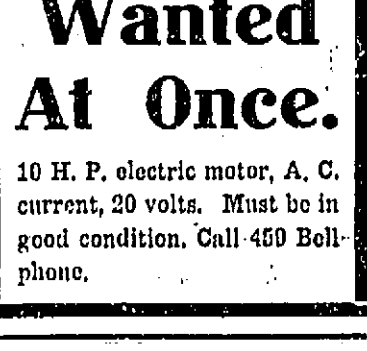

Forty Years Ago. Janesville Gazette, March 18, 1872—A meeting will be held tonight in London to commemorate the anniversary of the communist uprising in Paris. It is announced that the administration will submit an amnesty bill to the senate on Wednesday, next through Senator Morton, and ask its immediate consideration. The first public meeting of the International was held at St. Louis, at Turner's Hall, yesterday. Some 300 or 400 persons were present. Speeches were made by Warren Chase and others. A boiler at Shurland's mill, Brown county, exploded on Friday, killing two people and wounding nine. On the 15th of March 1871, navigation was opened to La Crosse. On the same date this year the thermometer was four degrees below zero and the ice in the river thirty inches thick.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams BY WALT MASON. Blithe teller of gay, sunny tales of open roads and rural values, long may you be by the fireside story, and charm the winter hours away! I love your thickers and your church, your vineyard, and your FARNOL. JEFFERY your vineyard, the atmosphere of farm and wood, and woodlands decked with autumn gold, and wayside huts and village chimneys, and customs of the old, dead times. And when, beside the inglenook, I take again your cheery book, I know I'll find no dismal page concerning problems of the age; no dismal message of despair, no dreary "purpose" lingers there; no analyst dissects crimes or brooding evils of the times. You do not pose and try to teach; your characters don't always preach; you uplift, bore explain their dreams or rant a while on vital themes. You leave the sordid world behind, and take us from the beauty and grandeur of nature, and rippling hills and shining woods and verdant fields, where panthers pan and zephyrs zeph, and you're a peacemaker, Jeff!

Power of the Soul. The soul can use a fine body more effectively than it can a poor body. It can do wonders through an inadequate body.—Charles W. Eliot.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—And Father was only attending strictly to business.

The Book Said So.
The geography class was in session. One small pupil astonished the class by stating that in a certain section of South America there were talking monkeys. When the teacher questioned the statement the youngster opened his geography and triumphantly read: "This region is inhabited by a species of monkey; properly speaking, apes."—The Delineator.

Sure Enough.
The teacher had been telling the class about the rhinoceros family. "Now, name some things," said she, "that are very dangerous to get near to, and that have horns." "Automobiles!" replied little Jennie Jones, promptly.—Undisputed.

NO CAUSE TO DOUBT

A Statement of Facts Backed by a Strong Guarantee.

We guarantee immediate and positive relief to all sufferers from constipation. In every case where our remedy fails to do this we will return the money paid us for it. That's a frank statement of facts, and we want you to substantiate them at our risk.

Health Orderlies are eaten just like candy, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night, do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, griping, excessive looseness, or other unpleasant effects. They have a very mild but positive action upon the organs with which they come in contact, apparently acting as a regulative tonic upon the relaxed muscular coat of the bowels, thus overcoming weakness, and aiding to restore the bowels to more vigorous and healthy activity.

Health Orderlies are unsurpassable and ideal for the use of children, old folks and delicate persons. We cannot too highly recommend them to all sufferers from any form of constipation and its attendant evils. That's why we back our faith in them with our promise of money back if they do not give entire satisfaction. Three sizes: 12 tablets 10 cents, 20 tablets 25 cents and 40 tablets 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain Health Orderlies in Janesville only at our store—The Rexall Store, The Smith Drug Co., 14 West Milwaukee St., Janesville, Wis.

Headache?—It's Your Liver

Too Many People Take Headache Powders When a Liver Tonic is Needed.

Try Olive Tablets—the Substitute for Calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are the one substitute for dangerous calomel. They do all of calomel's work without any of its bad after effects.

"There is no necessity," when you take Olive Tablets, of following them up with nasty, sickening, griping salts or castor oil, as you should after taking calomel.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel or any other metallic drugs; they are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil, sugar-coated, easy to take, and never gripe or cause weakness.

Thousands of people take one every night at bedtime just to prevent disorder of the liver, constipation, bad breath, pimples, headache, etc.

Olive Tablets are made of pure vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

Dr. Edwards, calomel's old enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with liver and bowel trouble.

Try them for a week. Take one on retiring nightly.

"Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own."

10c and 25c per box.

CHAPTER XII. Forsaking All Others.

OUR slow travel finally brought us near to the historic forks of the Platte where that shallow stream stretches out two arms, one running to the mountains far to the south, the other still reaching westward for a time. Between these two ran the Oregon trail, pointing the way to the west, lay Laramie. Before us now lay two alternatives. We could go up the benton road to Laramie or we could cross here and take an old trail on the north side of the river for a time. Aubrey thought this latter would give better feed and water and perhaps be safer to Indians, so we held a little council over it.

"The Platte even here was a wide, treacherous stream, its sandy bottom continuously shifting. At night the melted floods from the mountains came down and rendered it deeper than during the day, when for the most part it was scarcely more than knee deep. Yet here and there at any time, undiscoverable to the eye, were watery pitfalls where the sand was washed out, and in places there was shifting quicksand, dangerous for man or animal.

We resorted to the old plains makeshift of calking the wagon bodies and turning them into boats, it being thought probable that two or three days would be required to make the crossing in this way. By noon of the following day our rude boats were ready, and our work began.

I was not yet strong enough to be of much assistance, so I sat on the bank watching the busy scene. Our men were stripped to the skin, some of the mountaineers brown almost as Indians, for even in those days white hunters often rode with no covering but the blanket and not that when the sun was warm. They were now in, now out of the water, straining at the lines which studded the rude boxes that bore our goods, pulling at the heads of the horses and mules, shouting, straining, encouraging, always getting forward. It took them nearly an hour to make the first crossing, and presently we could see the fire of their farther camp, now occupied by some of those not engaged in the work.

As I sat thus I was joined by Mandy McDevore. "Did you see my boy, Andy Jackson?" she asked. "He went across with the first bunch—nary stitch of clothes on to him. I have hopes—I certainly have hopes—that Andrew Jackson 'll kill a man some time yet, and like enough it'll be right soon."

I gave my assent to this amiable hope, and presently Mandy went on: "But, say, man, you and me has got to get that girl across somehow between us. You know, her and me and sometimes that Englishman travels along in the ambershuck. She's allowed to me quiet that when the time comes for her to go across she'd rather you and me went along. She's all ready now if you air."

"Very good," said I, "we'll go now. They've got a fire there and are cooking, I suppose."

We three, all mounted, met at the bank. Taking the girl between us, Mandy and I started, and the three horses plunged down the bank. As it chanced, we struck a deep channel at the bend of the river, and the horses were at once separated. The girl was swept over her saddle, but before I could render any assistance she called out not to be alarmed. I saw that she was swimming down stream from the horse, with one hand on the pommel. Without much concern, she reached footing on the bar at which the horse scrambled up.

"Now I'm good and wet," laughed the girl. "It won't make any difference after this. I has how 'bout the squaws do."

We plunged on across the stream, keeping our saddles in shallow water, sometimes on dry, sandy bars, and now and again in swift, swirling channels, but at last we got over and fell upon the steaks of buffalo and the hot coffee which we found at the fire. The girl left us to make such changes in her apparel as she might.

"That gal's good enough for a real man, like my first husband was," said Mandy.

"What could he do?" I asked her, smiling.

"Shuff a candle at fifty yards or drive a nail at forty. He macholly seemed to bring home a squirrel shot back of the ears. He killed four men in fair knife fights, an' each time came free in co'te. He was six foot in the clenn, could hug like a bar, and we'n't steer'd of anything that draw'd the breath of life."

"Tell me, Aunt Mandy," I said—"tell me how he came courting you any way."

"In never did no great at co'tin'," said she, grinning. "He just come along an' he sot eyes on me. Then he sot eyes on me again. I sot eyes on him too."

"Yes?"

"One evenin', says he, 'Mandy, gal, I'm goin' to marry you all right soon.' Says I, 'No, you ain't!'

"Says he, 'Yes, I air!' I jest laughed at him then and started to run away, but he jumped and ketched me—told you he could hug like a bar. Maybe I wasn't hard to ketch. Then he holds me right tight, an' says he, 'Gal, quit this here foolin'! I'm goin' to marry you, you hear?' Then maybe he kisses me. Law, I dunno! What business is it of yours anyhow? That's about all there was to it. I didn't seem to keer. But that," she concluded, "was a real man. He shore had my other two men plumb faded."

"What became of your last husband, Mandy?" I asked.

"I told you I up an' left him," said I to your own promise?"

"My promise? What's the word of a woman to a man? What's the word of a man to a woman? It ain't words, man, it's feelin'."

"In sickness or in health?" I quoted.

"That's all right if your feelin's is all right. The church is all right too. I ain't got no kick. All I'm sayin' to you is, folks marries themselves."

I pondered yet further. "Mandy," said I, "suppose you were a man and your word was given to a girl and you met another girl and couldn't get her out of your head or out of your heart; you loved the new one most and knew you always would, what would you do?"

But the sphinx of womanhood may be under linsey woolsey as well as silk. "Man," said she, rising and knocking her pipe against her bony knee, "you talk like a fool. If my first husband was alive he might maybe be answer that for you."

Later in the evening I was on the river bank watching the men out on the bars struggling with their teams and box boats. Orme had crossed the river some time earlier, and now he joined me at the edge of our disorderly camp.

"How is the patient getting along?" he inquired. I replied that I was doing very well and therefore intended to comport myself as though nothing had happened.

"I am somewhat sorry to hear that," said he, still smiling in his own way. "I was in hopes that you would be disposed to turn back down the river."

"I don't in the least understand why I should be going east when my business lies in precisely the opposite direction," I remarked.

"I thought that possibly you might be sensible of a certain obligation to me," he began.

"I am deeply sensible of it. Are you pleased to tell me what will settle this debt between us?"

He turned squarely toward me and looked me keenly in the eye. "Turn about and go home."

"Meaning?"

"That your affections are engaged with a highly respectable young lady back at your home in Virginia. Wait"—he raised his hand as I turned to follow him, "Meaning also," he went on, "that your affections are apparently also somewhat engaged with an equally respectable young lady who is not back home in Virginia. Therefore—"

He caught my wrist in a grip of steel as I would have struck him. I saw then that I still was weak.

"Wait," he said, "smiling coldly. 'Wait till you are stronger.'"

"You are right," I said. "But we an with another man? The field is open. Do what you can. I know that is the way I'd do. Orme, why did you not kill me the other day when you could?"

"I preferred it the other way," he remarked.

"You surely had no scruples about it?"

"Not in the least. I'd as soon have killed you as to have taken a drink of water. But I simply love to play my kind of game that tests me, tries me, puts me to my utmost mettle."

"I was never very subtle," I said simply.

"No, on the contrary, you are rather dull. I dared not kill you; it would have been a mistake in the game. It would have cost me her sympathy at once. Since I did not and since therefore you owe me something for that fact, what do you say about it yourself, my friend?"

I thought for a long time, my head between my hands, before I answered him. "That I shall pay you some day, Orme, but not in any such way as you suggest."

"Then it is to be war?" he asked quietly.

I shrugged my shoulders. "You heard me."

"Very well!" he replied calmly after awhile. "But listen. I don't forget. If I do not have my pay voluntarily in the way I ask I shall some day collect it in my own fashion."

When finally our entire party had been got across the Platte and we had resumed our westward journey the routine of travel was for the time broken and our line of march became somewhat scattered across the low, hilly country to which we presently came.

It was early in the afternoon when I heard her horse's feet coming up behind me as I rode. She passed me at a gallop, laughing back as though in challenge, and so we raced on for a time until we quite lost out of sight behind us the remainder of our party. Ellen Meriwether was a Virginia girl with western experience, and it goes without saying that she rode well—of course in the cavalry saddle and with the cross seat. Brown as her face was now becoming one might indeed at a little distance have suspected her to be rather a daughter of the plains than a belle of civilization. I made some comment on this. She responded by sitting the more erect in her saddle and drawing a long, deep breath.

"I think I shall throw away my gloves," she said, "and hunt up some brass bracelets. I grow more Indian every day. Isn't it glorious, here on the plains?"

It so seemed to me, and I so advised her, saying I wished the western journey might be twice as long.

"But Mr. Orme was saying that he rather thought you might take an escort and go back down the river."

"I wish Mr. Orme no disrespect," I answered, "but neither he nor any one also regulates my travel. I have already told you how necessary it was for me to see your father, Colonel Meriwether."

I began to hum to myself the words of an old song, then commonly heard: "Oh, come with me and be my love! For these the jungle's depths I'll rove. I'll chase the antelope over the plain, And the tiger's cub I'll bind with a chain. And the wild gazelle with the silvery feet I'll give to thee for a playmate sweet."

"Poets," said I, "can very well sing about such things, but perhaps they could not practice all they sing. They always—"

"Lush!" she whispered, drawing her horse gently down to a walk and finally to a pause. "Look! Over there is one of the wild gazelles."

I followed the direction of her eyes and saw peering curiously down at us from beyond the top of a little ridge something like a hundred yards away the head, horns and neck of a prong horn buck, standing facing us and seeming not much thicker than a knife blade. Her keen eyes caught this first, my own, I fancy, being busy elsewhere. At once I slipped out of my saddle and freed the long, heavy rifle from its sling. I heard her voice, hard now with eagerness. I caught a glance at her face, brown between her hands. She was a savage woman!

"Quick!" she whispered. "He'll run."

Eager as she, but deliberately, I raised the long barrel to line and touched the trigger. I heard the thud of the ball against the antelope's shoulder and had no doubt that we should pick it up dead, for it disappeared, apparently and over and at the moment of the shot. Springing into the saddle, I raced with my companion to the top of the ridge. But, lo! there was the antelope 200 yards away and going as fast on three legs as our horses were on four.

"Hillo!" she called. "Hurry!" And she spurred off at breakneck speed. In pursuit, myself following.

We should perhaps have contained this chase until one or the other of the horses dropped, but now her horse picked up a pebble and went some what lame. She pulled up and told me to ride on alone. After a pause I slowly approached the top of the next ridge and there, as I more than half suspected, I saw the antelope lying down, its head turned back. Eager to finish the chase, I sprung down, carelessly neglecting to throw the bridle rein over my horse's head. Dropping flat, I rested on my elbow and fired carefully once more. This time the animal rolled over dead.

Alas for our joy of victory! Our success was our undoing. The very motion of my throwing up my hat, boyish as it was, gave fright to my horse, already startled by the shot. He flung up his head high, snorted and was off as fast as he could go. I followed him on foot rapidly as I could, but he would none of that and was all for keeping away from me at a safe distance. This the girl saw, and she rode up now, springing down and offering me her horse.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

THE THUMBSCREW.

BY A. W. MACY.

The thumbscrew as an instrument of torture was first used during the Spanish Inquisition. Afterward, however, it was introduced into other European countries, including Great Britain. The last time it was used in Great Britain it was applied to a Presbyterian minister named William Carstares, before the Scotch privy council, to compel him to reveal certain secrets he was supposed to hold. But he firmly resisted, suffering the torture in silence. Afterward, in 1688, the council made him a present of the thumbscrews with which he had been tortured. King William desired to see them, and at his request they were applied to his own thumbs, in order that he might see how it felt. Three turns were sufficient to satisfy his curiosity. He declared that such torture would make a man willing to confess anything.

Other People's Business.
A man that is busy and inquisitive is commonly envious. For to know much of other men's matters cannot be because all that, and may concern his own estate; therefore it must needs be that he taketh a kind of play-pleasure in looking upon the fortunes of others. Neither can he that invidiously, but his own business and much matter for envy. For envy is a gadding passion, and walketh the streets, and doth not keep home; there is no curious man but has some invidiousness to quicken his curiosity.—Bacon.

Faithful Japanese Wives.
In one of the dramas of the immortal Chikamatsu, the Shakespeare of Japan, there is a passage representing the ideas of a devoted Japanese wife: "For the sake of my husband I would even lay my neck from my hands and feet." Such are the ideals of duty cherished and obeyed by the faithful wives of Japan, who not only bear their sacrifices without any sense of loss but are delighted that they can show their desire to be of signal service to their husbands.

Nervous, Debilitated and Run-Down

Either the Rest Cure or Tona Vita Will Build You Up Again.

If you are nervous, debilitated, and run-down in health, there are two things you can do to bring back your strength and vitality. You can go to a sanitarium and take the rest cure or you can secure the great modern tonic "Tona Vita" and let it build you up and furnish new nourishment for your shattered nerves.

If you knew what wonderful results have been accomplished by "Tona Vita" since physicians first introduced it in this country you would much rather take this tonic than to go to any sanitarium on earth. Here is a statement from Mr. J. B. House, of 381 Twentieth Ave., Milwaukee, Wis., who has tried "Tona Vita." "I was all run down, intensely nervous and suffered with the most violent headaches. I felt tired and dull all day. My body seemed benumbed at times and I did not sleep well. My digestion was imperfect and I was continually constipated. As soon as I ate anything my stomach filled with gas and I was distressed for a half hour or more. My mind was dull and my memory very poor. I contracted a cold easily and suffered with severe coughs. Sometimes ago I talked with a physician who advised me to take "Tona Vita." I did it and am glad I did for the medicine was wonderful in my case. I feel as though I had a new lease on life. My ambition has returned as well as my strength and energy."

"I now sleep well and get up in the morning feeling cheerful and ready for work."

"My wife was also run down and nervous. She started taking the medicine when it began to help me. Her improvement has been fine and she is now in good health."

If you are run down and haven't enough strength it is your own fault. If you feel miserable a day longer, when you can get such a preparation as "Tona Vita."

Smith Drug Co. is agent for Tona Vita in Janesville and will refund the purchase price if it is not entirely satisfactory. The Approved Formula anything my stomach filled with gas

You Can Make Your Farm Pay 6% on $1000 Per Acre Value

There is one piece of ground on Frank Mann's farm, near Gilman, Ill., that for seven years produced an average of 5 tons of alfalfa per acre. The next year it produced 20 tons of silage per acre, the next 115 bushels of corn, then 88½ bushels of oats, and last year 52½ bushels of wheat. The average gross return each year for these eleven years was more than $80 per acre. Making a most liberal allowance for all the labor and other expense of growing the crops, there is still enough net profit to pay 6 per cent interest on a valuation of $1,000 per acre. Land is worth as much money as the crops will pay interest on.

You Can Farm Like Frank Mann
You can make your farm worth $1,000 an acre by raising crops like Frank Mann's. FRANK MANN'S SOIL BOOK will tell you how. This book contains the meat of the practical experience of a man who has made good. It puts forward no unproven theories. Every point that the author makes is proved by facts from his own farm. It is a book of practical experience that any Middle Western farmer can follow on his own farm, and double his profits while he is doing it.

ST. PATRICK'S WORK
UNIQUE IN HISTORY

SOLE INSTANCE OF CONVERSATION OF ENTIRE NATION IN ONE LIFETIME.

SPIRIT STILL PERSISTS

Outline of Life and Accomplishments of Ireland's Patron Saint Given by the Rev. Father W. A. Goebel.

"To St. Patrick belongs the signal honor and glory of converting an entire nation within the space of one lifetime, and without the shedding of one drop of blood; an accomplishment unequalled in the history of the world and of the church. Without arms, without money, using only the sign of the cross, he brought into the church the then thoroughly pagan people of Ireland, and at the time of his death the island was dotted with churches, monasteries, and convents."

"This tribute to Ireland's patron saint was paid by the Rev. Father W. A. Goebel in his sermon at St. Mary's church yesterday morning, outlining the life, deeds and influence of St. Patrick."

"I am pleased to note," said the Rev. Goebel, in beginning his sermon, that in a list of the world's twelve greatest men, appears the name of our beloved St. Patrick, whose name we delight in honoring today. It is right and fit that we should honor our great men, to commemorate their lives and deeds and perpetuate their memory; to recall their triumphs, their trials and sacrifices for religion and mankind, by so doing we keep alive the ideals and aspirations that inspired them, encourage emulation of their good deeds and acknowledge a debt which we owe."

"The average man is mindful of favors, and feels keen gratitude toward those who have fought his battles. It is natural for men to perpetuate great events in world history. Every nation has its heroes and great men whose fame it perpetuates and whom it is proud to honor and reverence."

"So it is in our church. Every Christmas day it commemorates the birth of the Saviour, and on Good Friday his crucifixion. Every Friday good Catholics commemorate this sacrifice by abstaining from the eating of flesh. Thus we from time to time refresh our minds of the great works and events in the life of Christ and his apostles."

"The great men of the world are our common inheritance. Every American rejoices in the life of Washington, and in the Fourth of July which marks the birth of our liberty; the peculiar blessings which we enjoy compared with the people of Europe."

"As in the earthly and temporal, so in the spiritual world. We celebrate the deeds done in the cause of religion and the triumph of truth. Great men have been called, inspired and crowned by God to perform great duties. They may not have been great in the sight of the world, or have won earthly distinction, but in the kingdom of God they worked humbly, and patiently, and sacrificed even their very lives for the triumph of truth."

"It is such a man whom we honor today. The exact date and place of birth of St. Patrick are not known. As closely as we can ascertain he was born in Scotland in about the year 355. The Roman empire was then in its decline and the Romans who had gained a foothold in Great Britain under Julius Caesar were beginning to retreat their steps. It was during this time that St. Patrick, then a boy of fourteen was torn from his mother's arms and the scene of his youth and sold into bondage in Ireland."

"This is the most touching time in his life. Just at the age when he would be enjoying to their utmost the pleasures of youth, he was taken from the care and beyond the reach of his fond parents, perhaps never to return. No historian has told what his noble youth suffered and we can but dimly comprehend his afflictions."

"In spite of all that he endured the faith of St. Patrick in God and his purpose survived and grew. The sparks of kindness kindled in his heart by a praying mother were fanned into a glowing flame. We know he had a praying mother, one who prays as so many mothers do, and all should pray. She prayed that he be released from slavery and he returned to her bosom. That prayer was answered."

"But the touch of the spirit had come upon St. Patrick, and his heart never ceased to beat for the people of Ireland who were yet in darkness. He returned there a priest and a missionary and it is wonderful to relate that within his own lifetime the entire country was converted. His perseverance never faltered. He was a man of wonderful spiritual power and knowledge and infused into the people of Ireland a spirit of fidelity to the church which is to be found in no other country."

"Before his death St. Patrick prayed that the faith which he planted in Ireland should never die. That prayer was heard. After fifteen hundred years it has not grown dim, wonderful in the face of the centuries of persecution when bishop and priest and nun were hunted and tortured and died for their faith."

"We hear much now of the great future opening for Ireland; how it is to become a nation, and take an honored place in the world. Ireland has always been a nation with a distinctive life and ideals. The spirit of St. Patrick has followed the Irish everywhere; it has expressed itself in literature, art, statesmanship, in courage and the arts. The impression he made is true, lasting and deep. Every sign and indication is that the Irish will remain loyal children of the church, which he established in their country."

Chicago & Northwestern. TRAFFIC INCREASES IN LAST TWO DAYS

Saturday and Sunday Busiest Days in Several Weeks and Many Extra Trains Are Handled Through Here.

When the two time freight, 83 and 579, were transferred to the Butler route, it was thought that it would materially decrease the business through here, but the way trains came through Saturday and Sunday would seem to discountage this idea. Seventeen extras passed through during the day Saturday, and fourteen went through after the way business has been running in the local yards for the past three or four weeks. Very little business has been done over Sunday in South Janesville since the two freights were taken off, much of the stuff being handled over the new route through Butler, until the sudden increase of trains which started two days ago. Engines were asked for before they got into the shops and one after another went out as soon as it arrived.

Ed. Walsh handed in his resignation yesterday and will not appear at the roundhouse after this.

I learned the street building trade as a young man in my native country, Germany, and as all know when any trade is learned in that country, your training is most thorough, and you are qualified to follow that occupation.

I believe in a "Square Deal" to all mankind and that this doctrine should be applied to street building and repairing and our citizens given full value for their money for this class of work.

I do not believe that it is necessary to go to the extra expense of digging out and draining away from our streets from 6 to 12 inches of native soil as in most cases this soil is more valuable than the material used in its place.

I do not believe that a macadamized street should be dug up and the material which the abutting property owner has paid for, hauled in to some other place.

In conclusion I will say that I believe in the doctrine of a "Square Deal" first last and all the time, in all things to all mankind. It has been remarked that I am too old for the office but I elected will show that this is not the case.

AUGUST LUTZ.

On the eve of the election I wish to state that I am under no obligation that will interfere with the proper performance of the duties of the office of Commissioner and also wish to thank the citizens of Janesville for the kind and favorable consideration with which they have received my candidacy.

W. T. FLAHERTY.

Paid advertisement; amount paid, $2.50 each insertion.

Believe that the form of government that the city of Janesville has adopted has removed the necessity of electing politicians to office and that the voters of the city in adopting the commission form of government wished to place the offices of the city in the hands of business men and since I have but retired from active business in which I have made a success I feel that I am justified in entering the race for commissioner and asking the support of the voters.

If elected I shall try and handle the people's money and business as I would my own and shall in no way try to make myself the lender and not the servant.

I shall stand for as liberal a town as the ordinances of the city as at present on the statute books and as shall be placed there will allow, but, being a law abiding citizen myself, I shall also stand for the rigid enforcement of the laws.

At this time I also wish to thank my friends and for what assistance and encouragement they have given me during the past campaign.

ECONOMICAL ADMINISTRATION—EQUITABLE DISTRIBUTION OF PUBLIC FUNDS.

The Platform of E.J. Schmidley

Will You Vote For Experience—Will You Vote For Known Ability? Will You Vote For Personal Qualities?

ON THIS PLATFORM I SOLICIT IT YOUR VOTES.

Voters:—Tonight is the last time you will have for a quiet consideration of the merits of the various candidates for whom you will vote at the primary election. Will you not for a short time allow your mind to dwell upon the facts concerning myself, which I wish to present at this time, and which will, I hope, convince you that I merit your support tomorrow.

I was born of poor parents, in Naperville, Ill., in 1863, and at the age of 13 years came to this city. Beginning life for myself at the age of 17 I entered the milk business and by hard and industrious work made a success.

Eighteen years ago I entered the restaurant business in the same building in which I am now located and the fact that I am now the owner of considerable real estate holdings and a man of some property shows that I am at least able to manage my own business successfully.

I entered public life three years ago when I became a candidate for and was elected to the office of councilman. During these three years I have stood for what was best in the best interest of the city and did my duty well enough that the voters of my ward returned me to the office at the election a year ago.

Living in Janesville all my life, in business practically all that time, I understand the needs of the city. My every interest being here I am in everything for the betterment of Janesville. I have watched the city grow from a town of a few hundred to its present population and no one can say that my hand or purse ever failed when needed to help in the city's growth.

If elected as commissioner, I shall stand for the following:

A Rigid Enforcement of the Laws. Liberal in my own views I feel that with the present form of government the citizens have a power of expression in the initiative and referendum and I shall allow that to be my guide.

An Economical Administration of the People's business. Having served in the council I understand where dollars can be saved, and where the leaks exist, and I shall try and grasp the one and stop the other.

An Equitable Distribution of the Money Raised for Public Improvements. By this I mean doing away with the old doctrine of "so much in each ward," and a policy of placing the expenditures where needed.

Were I to hire a man in my business, I would ask what experience he had in my line. Will you choose a man to direct your business unless he has had a sufficient experience to make him capable of doing well the business you shall intrust to him?

I have been a resident of Janesville for 15 years and during all of that time I have been engaged in business.

2. Having made a success of my private business I feel warranted in presenting myself to the consideration of the voters.

3. If elected a commissioner I will dispose of my private business and devote both my time and attention to the affairs of the city. I will have no divided interest.

4. My platform is simply a pledge to the citizens of Janesville that if elected I will strive to give this city a decent business like administration of its affairs both commercial and governmental.

5. I have made no pledges, nor promises to any interest and if elected will be free to act honestly in behalf of the whole city.

6. I have no pet notions to work out. I prefer to meet the problems as they arise in a spirit of justice and with an eye single to the best interests of the whole city. I've noticed in the past that many candidates full of promises have fallen short in performance. My only promise is to do the work of this office honestly and in all respects to the best of my ability.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Paid advertisement; amount paid, $1.00 each insertion.

I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of Mayor of the City of Janesville, at the coming primaries to be held on the 19th day of March, 1912.

To the Citizens of Janesville:

Realizing the responsibility of the office I am about to seek and fully conscious of the duties of said office, and with full belief that I could bring to said office a knowledge gained by long experience in the municipal affairs of our city, which would be of material benefit to the taxpayers and citizens in general, and particularly, now that we are about to enter upon a new form of government.

Therefore I seek the nomination and election to the office of Mayor. Should I be entrusted with the Honorable and important duties of said office, I can only promise, to the best of my ability, an honest, economical, industrious and faithful administration of its duties in a plain, business-like manner.

Soliciting the support of my fellow citizens and submitting my past public record to stand in judgment of my future actions, I am,

Yours truly,

JAS. A. FATHERS.

At the request of many friends I have decided to announce myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor at the primary election to be held March 19, 1912.

It is due the voters and tax payers to know what I stand for, and what I will attempt to do in accomplishing it.

First, I believe in a conservative, economical business administration where every dollar expended represents a dollar in value.

Second, I believe in the impartial enforcement of law without fear or favor and that no line of business should be exempt.

Third, I believe that the number of saloons in Janesville makes it necessary for the man engaged in the business to resort to all sorts of devices to make a living. The number should be reduced and the men that are licensed should understand that offenses will not be tolerated. Obey the law or forfeit the license.

Fourth, the city is polluted with dives and gambling houses, with slot machines and other devices which ruin our boys and young men. These conditions should not exist and they need not.

I believe that my experiences for the past 35 years with men and affairs, qualifies me to render the city, which has long been my home, efficient service. I ask your support at the polls.

JOHN W. PETERS.
